BILLIONS A YEAR AT STAKE IN AGE PENSION BATTLE

Lobbyists' Schemes Dim War Bonuses.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 22.—[Special.]—With pension lobbyists beginning to arrive on the scene, the greatest pension battle in history is about to begin. Compared with the billions of dollars involved in the old age pension plans now pending before congress, civil war pensions for the last half century and the world war veterans' bonus pale into insignificance.

Arguments on all the old age pension proposals that have been submitted will be laid before the house ways and means committee in hearings which begin Feb. 1. All bills and amendments relating to social security will be considered.

Townsendites Head Parade.

Heading the procession of lobbyists is Dr. Francis E. Townsend's organization, the largest of the pension pressure groups. The Townsend scheme proposes a 2 per cent tax on all business transactions, from the proceeds of which pensions up to $200 a month would be paid to all persons 60 years of age or over who retire from their occupations and spend the entire pension each month.

If all the 10 million persons over 60 in this country were to take advantage of the plan it would involve a maximum distribution of 24 billion dollars a year.

A variation of the Townsend plan is represented by the "general welfare bill" proposing a 2 per cent universal gross income tax to finance payments of $30 to $60 per month to persons over 60—who, however, would not be required to spend the pension each month. The maximum distribution under this plan would be approximately 7 billion dollars a year.

Hope to Remedy Present Law.

The conservative elements of both the Republican and Democratic contingents in the two houses will devote their efforts primarily to an attempt to remedy the faults in the existing social security law.

Most of these members want to put the social security system on a pay-as-you-go basis, which would operate to collect in pay roll taxes each year the exact amount needed to meet the benefits of that year after a small reserve fund had been created as a backing against some sudden emergency.

Members complain first that the present law ultimately will result in building a huge reserve fund of 47 billion dollars, which—if it existed in cash—would lie stagnant in Washington, impoverishing the reservoirs of private capital.

How Present Law Works.

Second, they complain that this fund, when created, will not exist in cash but in the form of federal government I. O. U's.

As the law now stands the hundreds of millions of dollars in social security taxes that are taken each year from the pay envelopes of the nation's workers are paid—like the yield from any other federal taxes—into the general fund of the treasury. Congress then appropriates an amount approximately equal to the total of these taxer and places it in the social security reserve fund, which in turn seeks to invest the money, but is permitted by law to invest it only in government bonds.

Therefore, as soon as the money is paid into the fund the treasury takes it out again and puts a government bond in its place. The money then is spent to meet the ordinary day-to-day obligations of the federal government.

Means Double Costs.

Thus—except for the comparatively minor sums now needed to meet the demands of beneficiaries under the act—every penny that is paid into the treasury in the form of social security pay roll taxes automatically increases the public debt by just that amount. Then when the time comes that the demands upon the social security fund make it necessary to turn these bonds back into cash, the government will have to raise the amount in taxes all over again.

Thus the American taxpayer will be called upon to pay twice for each pension it gives to the social security beneficiary as long as the present policy of "deficit" spending is continued.

FREE THOUGHT GAGGED BY IRISH BOOK CENSORS

State Dictates What People May Read.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

DUBLIN, Jan. 22.—Censorship rigid enough for a Fascist state controls the reading matter of Ireland to insure that orthodox opinions are not upset, whether religious, moral or political.

Eamon de Valera.

Backed by specific authority in the new constitution, Prime Minister Eamon de Valera's government sees to it that the people are protected from indecency, blasphemy, and anything that is considered subversive.

The censors work hard. Books of all sorts come under their ban, including works such as "Anthony Adverse," communist literature, and physical culture publications.

Well Known Books Banned.

Well known books that have been suppressed by the Irish censors include Louis Bromfield's "The Strange Case of Miss Annie Spragg," Christopher Morley's "Thunder on the Left," and "Three Comrades," by Erich Maria Remarque.

Many periodicals, including a number of American crime magazines, Physical Culture, and Ballyhoo, are considered unfit for Irish consumption. All foreign periodicals which are admitted into the country are taxed to help persuade the Irish to confine their attention to works published in their own country and with the full approval of their government.

Though the Irish newspapers are not actually censored, they are very careful what they print. De Valera has hinted publicly that censorship for the newspapers was around the corner if they did not watch their step.

Press Censors Itself.

Like the British press, the Irish papers prefer to censor themselves when hints are dropped by the authorities. Irish publications are watched carefully when they come off the presses. Foreign publications to which the censors object are stopped before they enter the country.

The decision on what is fit for Irish eyes rests with a board of government appointed censors. Its decisions are final.

The board acts under article 40 of the new constitution, in force for the last year. It provides for freedom of speech and publication, but hobbles that freedom considerably with qualifications.

Government Has Broad Power.

Article 40 first states that freedom of expression is to be assured, but provides that this shall not allow utterance of anything calculated to have an undesirable effect on morality or public order or on the authority of the government.

Taken at its face value, the clause looks harmless enough, but it means that anything unpleasant to the government can be barred. The description is so broad that whatever the censors find unpalatable for any reason can be said to come under it.

Little complaint is heard anywhere at the idea of banning indecent books, but the question is where to draw the line and how to decide what is indecent.

British System Different.

In England the system is not to forbid publication of a book, but to punish publication of anything the courts may consider obscene after it is published. When asked for an opinion, the authorities usually are willing to say that they would or would not bring a prosecution, but they cannot say whether or not it would succeed.

That system proves an effective way of barring obscenity. Any publisher who wants to bring out a book that may be on the border line must consider carefully whether it is safe to risk prosecution. The whim of some judge or jury may mean trouble for a publisher who has made an honest mistake in judging what is permitted.

All that is eliminated in Ireland. But there is the greater hardship that many books which circulate freely and without complaint in England or the United States are sup-

THIS YOUTH STUFF IS A LOTTA HOOEY, SAYS SKIER, 101 YEARS OLD

Old Forge, N. Y., Jan. 22.—(AP)—Charles Jennette, 101 years old, a civil war veteran of Old Forge who walks a mile and a half daily, skied down an Adirondack mountain slope today with grace and ease.

To spectators who marveled at his ability, Jennette said:

"When I was a little younger, we'd cover trails that aren't even thought of now. This 'youth must be served' stuff is a lotta hooey. Why, I just came down that cliff as good as those imported fellows do—and what's more, I'll go right back up and do it all over again."

Quagliata, 60 years old, mistook Neighbor Bush for a burglar and shot three times through the door. Bush is in a hospital, recovering from a gunshot wound in his leg.

Bridal Punch Puts Out Fiery Dress of Guest

A quick thinking husband, aided by an equally resourceful guest, saved a Highland Park woman from death at an Evanston wedding reception. The woman's evening gown had caught fire. Flames enveloped her. Her husband stripped off his dress coat and smothered the blaze. The guest drenched her with a bowlful of punch. The story was told last night.

The woman is Mrs. George Washington Childs, 850 Sheridan road, Highland Park. Scene of the dramatic fire and rescue was the parish house of the First Methodist church. The time was Saturday night. No report was made to the Evanston police or fire departments.

At Wood-Kittleman Wedding.

The wedding guests had assembled at 8:30 o'clock for the marriage of Miss Katherine Kittleman and Donald Macpherson Wood Jr. Miss Kittleman is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Buxton Kittleman of Evanston. Mr. Wood is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Macpherson Wood of 2258 Lincoln Park West. The senior Mr. Wood is a partner of Mr. Childs in Childs & Wood, fire and casualty insurance firm at 175 West Jackson boulevard.

The ceremony was performed by the pastor of the church, the Rev. Ernest Fremont Tittle. The reception followed in the parish house adjoining the church. The guests stood chatting and smoking in the long hall-like room. Congratulations were given the bride and bridegroom and toasts were proposed around the punch bowl.

Suddenly there was a spurt of fire at one side of the room. A scream silenced the laughing guests. The train of Mrs. Childs' dress was ablaze. She fell to the floor.

Punch Helps Quench Flames.

Mr. Childs, standing near his wife, acted quickly. He stripped off his dress coat and threw it on her, partly smothering the flames. An equally fast thinking guest picked up the huge punch bowl and splashed its contents over Mrs. Childs. The fire died out.

Dr. Vernon C. David, another guest, took charge. Mrs. Childs, who is in her 50's, was rushed to the hospital by automobile. She had incurred burns on her back, upper arms, and chest.

A carelessly tossed cigaret stub was believed responsible for the fire. No one knew for sure. And in the excitement no one could remember the name of the hero of the punch bowl.

Miss Frances Glampa, 17 years old, 1012 Grenshaw street, suffered serious burns on her back and right shoulder last night in another fire at a wedding reception. Her sister, Mary, had just been married to Joseph Pelligrino, 32, in a hall at 772 Taylor street. A cigaret stub ignited Miss Giampa's dress. Guests beat out the flames. She was taken to Mother Cabrini hospital.

Erin Moore Burned in Café.

New York, Jan. 22.—(AP)—A match carelessly dropped by a friend made a flaming torch of the dress of Erin O'Brien Moore, stage and screen actress, as she sat in a café last midnight.

Her escort, Drama Critic Jack Pulaski, and men from neighboring tables wrapped her face in a napkin and rolled her on the floor until the fire was out. She suffered leg and arm burns.

WASHINGTON DRINKS FROM TANKS WHEN BIG WATER MAIN BREAKS

Washington, D. C., Jan. 22.—(AP)—Tank trucks filled with water were ordered to stand by at fire houses today when a 30 inch main burst, cutting off the water supply of approximately 18 square miles of northeast Washington. Tank trucks carried water to sick persons and to mothers with babies.

Taxi Drivers Reap Harvest.

New York, Jan. 22.—[Special.]—A twenty-five foot column of water from a burst water main shot up from an excavation in upper Manhattan today, cascaded for an hour over the 9th avenue elevated structure and flooded a busy intersection. Taxi drivers reaped a harvest by ferrying passengers through the flood at 5 cents each.

GOEBBELS' MOVIE SWEETIE AND HER MATE DISAPPEAR

[Special Cable to the New York News.]

BASEL, Switzerland, Jan. 22.—Lida Baarova, glamorous motion picture actress for love of whom Dr. Paul Joseph Goebbels, Nazi propaganda minister, is threatened with removal from his office, has disappeared mysteriously, it was reported authoritatively here tonight. The Czecho-Slovak beauty, it was said, was removed last Friday from a villa at Wannsee, near Berlin.

Friends of Miss Baarova's husband, Gustav Froelich, the actor, also learned that he had disappeared. They feared he had been executed as a result of the scandal he created by challenging Dr. Goebbels to a duel because of the propaganda's chief interest in his wife.

They attributed Miss Baarova's disappearance to the fact that she could no longer rely upon Goebbels for protection. The propaganda minister was beaten severely a few days before Christmas by friends of Froelich.

State Declares War Against Slot Machines

BY JAMES DOHERTY.

Slot machine racketeers of Illinois were warned yesterday they are facing war. Attorney General John E. Cassidy, who is expected home from Washington today, is the leader of the attack.

Attorney General John E. Cassidy.

The declaration of war came from T. P. Sullivan, chief of the state bureau of investigation. He has been working on eight murders in Illinois in the last year, all of which, he believes, were the work of slot machine gangsters.

"Every one dealing in slot machines is a criminal," said Attorney General Otto Kerner last year. Kerner was appointed a federal judge last Nov. 23. He was succeeded by Cassidy. Cassidy then announced that Kerner's view was his also.

Ready to Use His Power.

"I notified all state's attorneys and sheriffs on Dec. 6 that I was ready to use the power of my office to enforce the law against slot machines," the attorney general told Sullivan. "The slot machine racket must be wiped out.

"A murder was committed on June 9 near Peoria, my home. Investigators report that the man who was slain was in the slot machine racket. This is the last warning I'm going to give. We're going to stop this racket before more murders are committed by the gangsters in this trade."

Sullivan, a former chief of police at Springfield, Ill., and now superintendent of parolees, as well as chief investigator, said it appeared that the murder in Peoria county—that of Anton Miller—was connected with seven other murders in various parts of the state in recent months.

"Wherever there are slot machines in operation slayings may be expected," he warned.

Recalls Birger-Shelton Feud.

"The war in southern Illinois between the Birger and Shelton gangs in the early 1920s was over slot machines. Even in prohibition days the gangs fought more bitterly and killed more frequently over slot machines than over beer or alcohol.

"The revenue from slot machines is tremendous. It pays the rent of small taverns and roadside filling stations. For larger places the income from the machines runs up into large figures.

"Newly elected sheriffs and state's attorneys at first see little wrong in tolerating slot machines. But once public officials take the gangsters' money for permitting the machines it is not long before they are forced to condone other crime. They don't dare prosecute the men from whom they have accepted bribes."

Chief Sullivan said the machines are operated in every one of the 102 counties of Illinois. Cook county, outside the city limits of Chicago, is flooded with them, he stated. Chicago police have not permitted them within the city.

Expects Strong Resistance.

That strong resistance may be expected from the slot machine industry was apparent, Sullivan said, to any one who attended a convention of the coin machine manufacturers and the operators held last week in Chicago.

James A. Gilmore, secretary of the manufacturers' association, said more than $50,000,000 worth of coin machines were turned out during 1938. Nearly 95 per cent of them are made in or near Chicago, he said. The prediction was made that 1939 would be a good year for the industry.

"Business for them can only be good if the machines are permitted to gyp the public without molestation," Sullivan said.

Destroy Respect for Law.

"If all the machines did was trim a sucker it wouldn't be so bad. But slot machine gangs currupt public officials, turn honest storekeepers into thieves, destroy respect for the law, and lead young men into crime.

"I will give Attorney General Cassidy all the help I can. His orders will be carried out. The racketeers can expect nothing but trouble from us in Illinois."

RESCUE TANKER WITH 10 ABOARD FIGHTS STORM

New York, Jan. 22.—[Special.]—The dramatic story of the rescue of ten persons more than ten hours after they were pitched into the turbulent ocean 300 miles from shore after the forced landing of the luxury airliner Cavalier, was pieced together tonight as their rescue ship, the Esso Baytown, was bearing them to New York.

Frank H. Spurr, Rescue Captain. [A. P. Wirephoto.]

The Esso Baytown, a Standard Oil company tanker, was bucking stormy seas and high winds, but is expected to reach port at midday tomorrow. Her commander reported that the ten rescued—five women and five men—were in fair condition, but in need of extra clothing.

Three of the thirteen persons aboard the Cavalier were lost, two of them sinking in sight of their terrified wives, who were among the rescued. One, J. Gordon Noakes, a passenger and wealthy fur dealer of Malba, N. Y., had suffered a head injury when the Cavalier landed.

Tells How Husband Dies.

"He did not have strength to hold up," his widow is reported to have told an officer on the coast guard cutter Champlain which intercepted the rescue ship. "I tried to swim to him, but he let go—and I did not see him again." Another, Donald Miller, also a passenger, and a store president in Lincoln, Neb., also slipped into the sea from his wife's side. The third missing person, Robert Spence, a steward, was injured in the landing and sank beneath the waves a few minutes later.

Laconic reports from Capt. Frank H. Spurr, skipper of the Esso Baytown, told of the extraordinary heroism of two unidentified survivors who swam toward the ship in the icy darkness and called for help. This, however, is just part of the entire tale of the epic fight of the ten to survive.

The Cavalier was cruising high over the ocean Saturday, en route from New York to Bermuda on its 180th passage. Suddenly it ran into a "cold front." Ice formed in the carburetors and crippled the twenty ton flying boat's motors. A forced landing was made in the open sea at noon [Chicago time].

Strikes Water with Jolt.

Capt. M. R. Alderson, pilot, made what would have been a perfect landing under ordinary circumstances, but the seas were rough. The Cavalier hit the water with a jolt. The passengers were thrown out of their seats. Almost immediately water began pouring into the huge steel metal hull of the ship. Quick examination showed that the jolt had opened seams.

Patrick Chapman, radio officer, flashed out radio appeals for aid. His last word was "Sinking."

The eight passengers and the Cavalier's crew tore loose the life belts, but there was no time to adjust them on their bodies.

Then, as the doomed Cavalier settled, the crew and the passengers crawled out of the cabin doors and formed a raft of the bouyant belts. Ten minutes after striking the water the plane sank.

Dozen Ships Enter Search.

Meanwhile more than a dozen ships and planes were searching the area or on their way. Ship observers could not have seen the survivors from a distance. In a radio interview shortly after the rescue the passengers were quoted as saying that one ship passed without seeing them.

The hours dragged and hope was almost gone. Then the Esso Baytown appeared. The tanker had been searching the seas in the neighborhood for two hours without sighting the survivors. This time the tanker approached closely.

It was about 10 p. m. [Chicago time]. "We looked around and saw nothing," said Capt. Spurr, in a quoted report. Soon afterward his lookouts heard cries for help. The reports quoted the skipper further:

"The voices seemed to be coming out of the sea. We appeared to be right in the midst of them. We threw our searchlight rays on the water, and we saw people clinging to a life belt raft. We lowered a boat and rescued them."

Swim Toward Oil Tanker.

Piecemeal reports furthered this account. When the Esso Baytown neared the survivors two of the men swam toward the tanker calling for help until their cries were heard. Then they swam back to the group.

All ten were exhausted when found. They were put into hot cabins, and given dry clothing and such nourishment as they could take. Medical aid was asked of the United States gunboat Erie, which was near by. A pharmacist's mate boarded the tanker and ministered to the survivors. He was with them tonight on the return to shore.

Of the survivors, Capt. Alderson seemed in the worst shape. He was injured landing the Cavalier. The others were Radio Officer Chapman, Mrs. Noakes, Mrs. Miller, Mrs. George Ingham of Hamilton, Bermuda; Charles M. Talbot of Brookline, Mass.; Miss Nellie T. Smith of Pembroke, Bermuda, and Mrs. Edna Watson, also of Bermuda, all passengers; Steward David Williams and Neil Richardson, first officer.

Passenger's Arm in Sling.

Young Talbot, 22 years old, a Harvard business student, was on his way to Bermuda to convalesce from injuries suffered in a skiing accident. He had originally planned to go by boat, but had changed to plane at the last minute. One of his arms was in a sling when the Cavalier landed, but he managed to hold on to a life preserver with his other arm.

Miller, one of the missing passengers, and his wife had planned to leave for Bermuda Friday, but delayed the journey a day because of bad weather. The ship they originally had booked reached Bermuda safely.

The rescue of the ten survivors was described as "miraculous" by Capt. Griffith Powell, Bermuda manager for Imperial Airways, which operated the Cavalier. He flew in from Bermuda today on the Pan-American clipper, Bermuda Clipper. He circled over the spot where the Cavalier went down. The ocean was stormy. He found no traces of the wreckage. He said an investigation will be made as soon as the surviving crew members can be questioned.

MOVE TO CLAMP DOWN ON LIQUOR FOR RELIEFERS

New London, Conn., Jan. 22.—[Special.]—The Connecticut citizen's committee disclosed today that it had inquired of selectmen throughout the state whether a list of drinkers on relief had been filed with liquor sellers in their towns, as provided by the liquor control act, which forbids the sale of alcoholic beverages to such persons on penalty of fine or imprisonment, or both.

Donald G. North, state chairman of the civic organization, said investigations had disclosed in certain instances that "an alarmingly high portion of the daily receipts of retail liquor and beer outlets is made up of town relief checks."

Fire Destroys Fairview, Resort Hotel in Indiana

Rochester, Ind., Jan. 22.—(AP)—Fire of undetermined origin today destroyed the 50 room Fairview hotel and dancing pavilion, a summer resort on the east shore of Lake Manitou; burned a summer cottage and threatened numerous lake front homes. Firemen from Rochester and other nearby communities were powerless to combat the flames fanned by a high wind. Harry Paige, owner of the resort, estimated the loss at $100,000. The cottage razed belonged to the family of William King of Rochester. The loss was estimated at $7,500.

DUTCH FREIGHTER LEAKING; 2 SHIPS RACE TO RESCUE

New York, Jan. 22.—[Special.]—The Dutch freighter Parklaan, 1,300 miles out in the Atlantic, flashed a distress call tonight saying the vessel was leaking badly and asking for an escort to the Azores Islands, 1,000 miles away. Two British freighters radioed that they would go to the Parklaan and be prepared to take off the crew of 21 if necessary.

The radio generator of the Parklaan was out of commission and only weak signals could be obtained from the battery set. The British freighter Peerpool, en route for Ireland, reported she was 60 miles from the Parklaan and would overtake her by dawn. A westbound British ship expected to meet the Parklaan in four hours.

The Parklaan is of 3,807 tons and is loaded with scrap iron for Hamburg, Germany. The freighter loaded in Portland, Me. It touched at Boston and left a week ago. With a bad leak below the waterline, the ship is able to make only seven miles an hour.

CHARGES RUMOR MONGERS SCARE GULLIBLE BRITONS

[Copyright: 1939: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, Jan. 22.—The "jitters" that are upsetting the stock and exchange markets and scaring many persons today were attributed by Beverley Baxter, conservative member of parliament, to the new, inexplicable susceptibility of Britons to rumor mongers.

"Something, some psychological influence," he wrote in the Sunday Graphic, "is at work that is un-English and alien to this soil. Have we gone a little mad in Britain? Is the national character deteriorating, or is it possible there are influences at work which genuinely desire war or at least a condition of nerves and suspicion which make real peace impossible?"

Baxter cited several personal experiences during the week. On one occasion the stock market had sagged badly for an hour after a broker friend had asked over the phone, "What is this news that the evening papers are afraid to publish?" Later another broker phoned and said "The German army has canceled all leaves for March."

U. S. WILL PROBE CAUSE OF ICE IN CAVALIER ENGINE

Carburetor Reported to Have Lacked Heater.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 22.—[Special.]—Reports that Imperial Airways had neglected to equip the ill-fated flying boat Cavalier with a carburetor heater to prevent formation of ice and subsequent engine trouble will be investigated by the United States Civil Aeronautics authority. The Cavalier was forced down at sea yesterday with thirteen persons aboard. Ten were rescued. Two passengers and one crew member were lost.

Carburetor heaters are standard equipment on American planes. Lack of carburetor heaters on the Cavalier have been reported unofficially to experts of the authority.

Permit Must Be Renewed.

The federal investigation will come when qualifications of the British line are passed upon by United States officials in connection with Imperial's application for a certificate of convenience and necessity to enable the line to continue use of an American airport as a base for the Bermuda run.

Ice forms on airplane carburetors when moisture in the air is mixed with gasoline vapor by the carburetor. This combination freezes in the low temperature resulting from the transformation of liquid gasoline into vapor.

The Cavalier was a trustworthy craft and its equipment was excellent, according to reports to the civil aeronautics authority, so long as it was flown over the principal British routes—along the Mediterranean to India and South Africa. On these routes the ice hazard of the North Atlantic seldom is encountered.

Route Is Redefined.

Only two months ago the civil aeronautics authority amended the provisional letter of authority held by Imperial Airways and Pan-American Airways for alternate flying of the New York to Bermuda run, with takeoffs at either Port Washington, N. Y., or Baltimore, Md. The new ruling redefined the route to be flown to escape bad weather along the 750 mile course.

Planes are not permitted to take off from either port unless there is a 500 foot ceiling and a visibility of one mile. The original authorization, which specified that a great circle course should be flown, was changed to permit the pilot any deviation necessary to escape bad weather.

DIES AS TRAIN STRIKES CAR.

Ionia, Mich., Jan. 22.—[Special.]—George Fleck, 43 years old, of Fowler, was killed today when his auto was struck by a Grand Trunk passenger train in Fowler. Lee Taylor, 18 years old, who was riding with Fleck, was injured.

REVEAL PLANS ON OTHER MORAN CHARGES TODAY

Assistant State's Attorney Robert Wright is scheduled to appear today before Judge James F. Fardy in the Criminal court and announce the state's intention regarding further prosecution of George [Bugs] Moran, Frank Parker and Frank Hicketts, once a highway policeman. The three were acquitted last week on a charge of forging a $500 money order in a plot to pass a half million dollars in spurious American Express certificates.

Four other indictments remain on the Criminal court dockets against the three, all of whom are ex-convicts. The principal remaining charge is that of conspiracy. Three men indicted with them have pleaded guilty to the conspiracy indictment and are ready to testify again against Moran, Parker, and Hicketts.

Following the failure of the first prosecution Wright said he would be guided by State's Attorney Courtney's wishes concerning the other cases.

U. S. NAVAL CHIEF IN CHINA MAKES INSPECTION TOUR

ABOARD U. S. S. ISABEL, in the Yangtze River, China, Jan. 22.—(AP)—Admiral Harry E. Yarnell, commander of the United States Asiatic fleet, and Consul General Clarence E. Gauss were due in Shanghai tomorrow aboard the patrol boat Isabel after an inspection of American interests in the lower Yangtze valley.

This trip, begun on Jan. 18, was the first joint voyage of ranking American naval and diplomatic officials up the river since Japanese occupation.

A census showed sixteen Americans were at Chinkiang, sixty at Nanking, and thirty at Wuhu, almost all missionaries. As a result of Japanese pressure against foreign commercial enterprises, few American business men have returned to Yangtze ports.

LOTTE LEHMANN LOSES RACE TO DYING HUSBAND

Trains Held to Aid Dash Across Country.

Lotte Lehmann, the Metropolitan Opera star, lost a desperate 3,000 mile race yesterday to reach the bedside of her dying husband. Her husband, Otto Krause, died in a sanitarium at Saranac Lake, N. Y., while Miss Lehmann was speeding across the country by train.

Miss Lehmann learned of his death at 4:45 p. m. when she reached Toledo, O., on the Fifth Avenue Special of the New York Central Lines. Krause had died forty-five minutes earlier.

Trains Held to Aid Race.

Trains were held for Miss Lehmann all along her route from Spokane, Wash., where the race with death began. In Chicago, arrangements were made for the soprano to continue by plane, but weather conditions prevented this.

Miss Lehmann first learned of her husband's critical condition Friday afternoon at Spokane, where she was giving a concert. She hastily canceled her engagements and boarded a Great Northern train which arrived in Chicago at 8:45 a. m. yesterday.

Miss Lehmann arranged with Saranac Lake to keep her posted about Krause's condition. The railroad cooperated by holding her train at Fargo, N. D., and later at St. Paul, Minn., so that she could be in telephone communication with the sanitarium.

Learns Husband Is Sinking.

From the Union station here another telephone conversation informed her that Krause was sinking. Sobbing as she left the telephone booth, Miss Lehmann sped to the Chicago airport.

She had wired ahead for accommodations on the American Airlines plane scheduled to leave at 11:30 a. m. This flight makes a stop at Buffalo, N. Y. where arrangements were made for Miss Lehmann to transfer to another plane for Syracuse, N. Y.

Informed that gusty surface winds made the stop at Buffalo impossible, Miss Lehmann again resorted to rail transportation. She boarded the Fifth Avenue Special at 11 a. m. This would bring her to Utica, N. Y. at 2:30 a. m. this morning.

Due to Arrive Today.

William Roth, depot passenger agent at the La Salle street station, telegraphed ahead to Utica to hold the Saranac Lake train on the Adirondack division for thirty minutes. In this way Miss Lehmann would be able to reach the sanitarium at 6:50 a. m. today. It was the earliest moment she could be at Krause's bedside.

Krause was a retired Austrian cavalry officer. He would have been 56 years old next Sunday. At his bedside were two grown sons, Peter and Ludwig. Two other sons, Hans and Manon, are in Los Angeles. They were recent refugees from Austria.

Miss Lehmann became Krause's second wife in 1926 after a prolonged stage door courtship at the Vienna Opera house. Four years later she joined the Chicago Civic Opera company. In 1935 she made her debut with the Metropolitan in New York. She is 37 years old.

Miss Lehmann is scheduled to sing the rôle of the princess in Strauss' "Der Rosenkavalier" at the Metropolitan on Wednesday.

HOODED ROBBER IS KILLED BY SON OF POLICE CHIEF

Beloit, Wis., Jan. 22.—[Special.]—The mysterious hooded bandit who had baffled southern Wisconsin police for two months died today in a hospital. He was shot to death last night by Charles Tuller, son of the police chief.

Tuller, who is 19 years old, and Robert Fairbert, 17, son of the fire chief, work in a lunchroom. About 9:30 p. m. a colored robber wearing a green hood appeared. Armed with a target pistol he seized $40 and fled in an automobile. Tuller grabbed a gun from beneath the counter and with Fairbert pursued the robber in another car.

As the thief stopped for a trafic signal Tuller opened the door of the robber's car. Reaching for his pistol the Negro shouted "you ain't goin' to take me." Tuller fired one shot. The bullet pierced the thief's body. At the hospital the robber identified himself as Ned Lee, 35, of Gary, Ind.

FIGHTING FLARES IN STRUGGLE TO RULE AUTO UNION

Police Quell Violence as Martin Claims Victory.

Detroit, Mich., Jan. 22.—(AP)—Fighting in a meeting of 2,000 automobile workers this afternoon, marked the first mass violence of the clash between adherents and foes of Homer Martin.

Martin's position as president of the powerful United Automobile Workers of America [C. I. O.] has been challenged by seventeen members of the union's executive board. Both sides have called national conventions and the organization is splitting into two rival unions, one controled by Martin, who says he is fighting to oust communist leadership. The other faction is backed by the C. I. O., which is fighting to retain control of the auto workers.

Police Quell Violence.

The fighting occurred at a meeting of the Plymouth local of the U. A. W. A. in Cass Technical High school. A force of nearly 300 police was on hand and the violence was short lived, but the audience was dotted with black eyes.

After the meeting Pat McCartney, a pro-Martin leader of the local, announced that the body had voted "about 7 to 1" in support of Martin.

The anti-Martin group charged that their forces had been in control of the meeting at first, but that "the McCartney outfit came in with police protection and took over."

"It was a clear demonstration of the will of the rank and file," Martin said after the meeting.

Police Back Martin.

Richard T. Frankensteen, a U. A. W. A. vice president, suspended last Friday in Martin's purge of "communist dominated factions in the union," charged that police had allowed only Martin adherents to use the public address system at the meeting.

Sporadic fist fighting began while the throng of union members waited outside in the windswept street to be admitted to the building.

As the crowd trickled into the hall each man being stopped to have his credentials examined by police and officials of the local, other scuffling took place, and when the crowd was seated, fighting started on the stage. One man was knocked from the platform to the concrete floor below, but apparently was not injured seriously.

After a standing vote on the resolution supporting Martin, Fred Durance, appointed by Martin to serve as an administrator of the Plymouth local, announced that the meeting was adjourned. Police cleared the auditorium.

ERROR KILLS GIRL; PHYSICIAN AND DRUGGIST HELD

Philadelphia, Pa., Jan. 22.—[Special.]—Dr. John Raftery, a practicing physician for thirty years, and Miss Pearl Borow, 26 years old, a pharmacist, were charged with homicide today in magistrate's court after the death last night of Isabella Fratz, 15 years old, five minutes after she took medicine prescribed by the physician.

The physician, testifying before Magistrate Jacob Dogole, took full blame for inadvertently specifying twenty grains of strychnine in a prescription for the girl instead of one-half grain. He said the error occurred because he was in a hurry to leave his office when Miss Fratz presented a relief medical order for treatment of a minor ailment.

ORDER CIVILIAN POPULATION TO QUIT BARCELONA

Action Taken as Franco Riddles Defenses.

BULLETIN.

HENDAYE, France (At the Spanish Frontier), Jan. 23 (Monday).—(AP)—The Spanish government today ordered evacuation of the civilian population of its capital, Barcelona, under the threat of insurgent armies a little more than 15 miles from the city gates. Premier Dr. Juan Negrin's cabinet, after a long night meeting, announced the ministers themselves would remain at the capital to fight to the bitter end.

HENDAYE, France [At the Spanish Frontier], Jan. 22.—(AP)—The entire population of Barcelona was requisitioned today for defense of the Spanish government capital as 300,000 rebel troops drew ever narrowing circles almost within gunshot of the city.

The government's vaunted "mystery" line of defenses in the mountains bordering Barcelona province apparently had collapsed. Three of its key positions were in rebel hands.

All commerce and industry in Barcelona, except services vital to the defense, will cease tomorrow. The government, meeting in almost continuous session to plan defenses of Barcelona itself, ordered every able bodied male up to 55 years old and girls and women between the ages of 14 and 40 to dig trenches.

Bombers' Flights Unceasing.

From the air, massed squadrons of rebel Generalissimo Francisco Franco's bombers circled over the government capital in unceasing relays, dropping tons of explosives.

Two days and a night of rebel bombing left thirty persons dead and sixty-six wounded in the streets of Barcelona. The dead included six of the crew of the British freighter African Mariner. [Other dispatches said the British vessels Yorkbrook and Dover Abbey also were hit.] Only one of the twenty air raids reached the center of the city. The others were directed on an area within five-eighths of a mile of the port zone.

The increasingly dangerous situation for the government was emphasized by the steady throb of cannon fire from the northwest.

Rebels said Igualada, thirty miles northwest of Barcelona, was captured early this morning. Twice within three days it had changed hands while veteran government troops under Gen. Enrique Lister fought desperately to save it.

Cross Principal River.

Between Igualada and Manresa, about fourteen miles to the northeast, rebels said they had crossed the Llobregat river, cutting a road which not only linked Barcelona to the northern sectors of the front but which also was one of the two main highways to the French frontier.

The rebels now are driving from the south toward Martorell, which is only ten miles from the edge of Barcelona. At their nearest point, in the San Saturnino sector, the rebels' line was about ten miles southwest of Martorell. From Martorell, a vital crossroad on the swift running Llobregat river, a wide plain stretches to the guardian hills of Barcelona.

Refugees fleeing into France from government Spain brought increasingly numerous reports which indicated growing panic in Catalonia. Some said government officials already had fled Barcelona by airplane, carrying secret government archives to Madrid and Valencia. However, it was declared officially that the government would not move from Barcelona.

Aim to Halt Supplies.

Other reports said the Barcelona government has asked France to authorize an exodus of 40,000 refugees from Catalonia if it should become necessary.

The rebel air attacks on Barcelona's port apparently were aimed at cutting off the city from much needed food supplies. Teeming with refugees from the fighting zones Barcelona quickly was becoming a besieged city with rebel land forces and fleet isolating it ashore and afloat.

Rebel reports said the government armies were in headlong flight in the coastal sector and expressed belief they were attempting to fall back to a large line of defenses which bring Barcelona only ten miles from the center of the city.

Break Fortified Line.

Gen. Juan Yague's columns, conquerors of Villanueva y Geltru, last coastal town of any size before Barcelona, were reported to have captured Sitges, the "Hollywood of Spain," only eighteen miles from the government capital.

Late in the day dispatches from Barcelona said the government had recaptured Sitges and had driven the rebels back almost to Villanueva y Geltru, a distance of four miles.

Rebels also reported capture of Villafranca del Panades, eighteen miles south of Igualada, the third key position on the government's supposed Catalonian "Maginot" line.

They were the government's last hilltop strongholds. From there on to Barcelona, Franco's fighters found themselves on the down hill slopes of ranges surrounding their goal and with the most formidable natural barriers behind.

Food Shortage Acute.

PERPIGNAN, France, Jan. 22.—(AP)—An acute food shortage throughout Catalonia was reported tonight by refugees from government Spain fleeing before the Spanish rebels' advance on Barcelona.

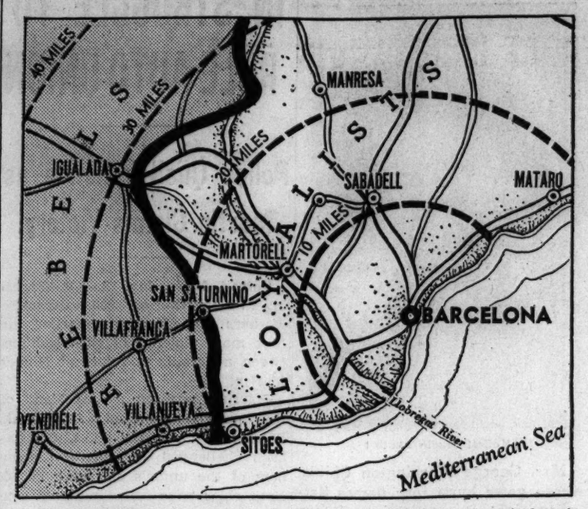
The American 7,050 ton cruiser Omaha, at Villefranche, France, within ten or twelve hours' steaming distance of the Spanish coast, was reported ready to leave on a moment's notice to remove Americans from danger in Barcelona.

Great numbers of refugees, including numerous deserters from the government's hard-pressed army in the Pyrenees, were crossing into France.

Reports from Barcelona said that diplomatic officials of several countries, including the United States, were understood to be considering transferring their headquarters to Perpignan.

Whole City Mobilized to Resist Franco

(Story in adjoining column.)



The Spanish government yesterday ordered a shutdown of industries in order to free all citizens to dig trenches and prepare fortifications against the advance of rebels. Heavy black line locates the fighting front and the circles indicate the various distances of the rebels' approach to Barcelona.

FRANCE WARNED TO AID SPAIN TO PROTECT HERSELF

PARIS, Jan. 22.— (AP) —Political meetings throughout France today expressed the nation's growing uneasiness at the possibility of a rebel victory in Spain and the establishment of Italian influence across the French-Spanish frontier.

Former Premier Joseph Paul-Boncour, permanent French delegate to the league of nations and one of France's elder statesmen, in a speech at a "meeting of peace" in Romorantin, warned:

"If Barcelona falls you will not have to wait long for an ultimatum from Italy, supported by Germany, demanding from us that which we are unanimous in not wishing to give but which we are so badly prepared to defend.

"For peace as well as war, it is necessary to rush to the sector most menaced, where not only the destiny of a people is at stake but also the fate of collective security, without which there is no assurance of peace."

POLICEMAN'S CAR STOLEN.

HITLER CONVERTS HIS ARMY INTO POLITICAL UNIT

BERLIN, Jan. 22.—A revolutionary change in the German army which, in effect, destroys the special standing of the officers' corps and converts the army from a nonpolitical independent body into a political arm of the Nazi régime, was announced in the German press today.

This notice reads: "The Reich League of German Officers has placed itself under the leadership of the army.

Reich Warrior and Fuehrer [Adolf Hitler]. It is the duty of every officer to become a member of the comradeship of the National Socialist Reich Warrior league. The Reich League of German Officers by a change of its constitution changed its name to 'Officers for the Welfare of the Community.'"

Heretofore, the Reich League of German Officers was comprised of inactive officers of the old and new armies, who are now subject to active duty without any age limit. Out of it grew the esprit de corps which was the backbone of the old German

JUGO-SLAVS MOVE CLOSER TO ROME AND BERLIN AXIS

Prepare to Accept Offer of Italian Cash.

BELGRADE, Jugo-Slavia, Jan. 22.—(AP)—Jugo-Slavia today moved closer to the Rome-Berlin axis as she prepared to accept an offer from Italy for financial credits and enlarged opportunities for absorbing Italian culture. As a result a Hungarian-Jugo-Slav friendship declaration appeared to be in the offing.

Count Galeazzo Ciano.

These developments came from the conferences of Foreign Minister Count Galeazzo Ciano of Italy with Premier-Foreign Minister Milan Stoyadinovitch of Jugo-Slavia during a week's hunting trip which ended last night.

Statesmen in Accord.

A communique said the two statesmen were in accord after canvassing the entire international situation. It also disclosed that Ciano enjoyed a successful hunt, bagging sixty-four hares and seven stags.

With Hungary already virtually a part of the axis, German-Italian influence in southeastern Europe was extended considerably by Ciano's negotiations.

Economic leaders, however, expressed satisfaction over the possibility of doing more business with Italy because of difficult conditions of payment and barter involved in trading with Germany.

In official circles it was said that Italy was prepared to extend cheap credits for Jugo-Slav public works and business. It was expected an Italian bank would be established in Belgrade and Italian cash be made available to electrify railways and build a railroad across Slovenia to connect Trieste and Vienna.

Free Harbor for Jugo-Slavia.

Trieste would be made a free harbor for Jugo-Slavia, it was stated, so that an extensive region of Slovenia would have easier access to the Adriatic. Heretofore Slovene exporters have been at a disadvantage because of the long rail haul to Jugo-Slav harbors.

A positive accomplishment in the political field was the arranging of foundations for a Jugo-Slav-Hungarian declaration of friendship. Hungary, it was said, in return for renouncing her claims on any Jugo-Slav territory was holding out for a promise that Jugo-Slavia would do nothing if Hungary made claims on Rumania.

[Under the post-world war treaty of Trianon, signed June 4, 1920, Hungary lost 38,600 square miles of territory with a population of 5,265,444 to Rumania and 8,100 square miles embracing 1,499,213 inhabitants to Jugo-Slavia.]

Propellerless Freighter Nears Port on a Towline

New York, Jan. 22.—[Special.]—In tow of the wrecking tug Relief, the freighter Black Condor, which lost her propeller in the North Atlantic storm last Tuesday, was nearing New York tonight. The coast guard cutter Cayuga made a 300 mile forced draft run from Boston to reach the ship, which was wallowing in the sea seventy-five miles southeast of Sable Island, off Nova Scotia. The Cayuga put a line aboard the Condor and towed her until the Relief arrived.

Homesick Actress

JUNE TRAVIS.

June Travis was homesick. She wanted to see her family and friends in Chicago. So she left Hollywood, where she has been a film starlet for nearly four years.

She was starting to catch up on social engagements last night. Her father, Harry Grabiner, secretary of the Chicago White Sox baseball club, said June would be home for several weeks. The Grabiners live in a South side hotel.

Will she return to Hollywood? Mr. Grabiner was uncertain.

"She liked it there," he said, "but she likes it here, too. She may go into radio work."

SWISS PROTEST NAZI ATTACKS ON NEUTRAL NATION

(Copyright: 1939: By the New York Times.)

GENEVA, Switzerland, Jan. 22—The Swiss government has instructed its minister to Berlin to protest against anti-Swiss articles that recently were published in German newspapers.

These articles dealt with Swiss neutrality and contended that citizens or the press of a neutral country should not express any opinion concerning a foreign country.

In the monthly magazine National-socialistische Monatshefte it is asserted that a neutral country such as Switzerland should not welcome political refugees from Germany. The magazine also says that newspapers should not be allowed to advertise foreign loans such as the recent French government loan, which was oversubscribed in Switzerland.

FOES TOO STUPID TO BE A MENACE, DUCE CRIES AGAIN

Do Not Stand in Way of Italy, France Warned.

ROME, Jan. 22.—(AP)—Premier Mussolini reiterated today that Fascism's enemies were "too stupid to be dangerous" and warned France not to stand too firmly in Italy's way.

Il Duce, addressing 150 prize winning wheat farmers in a Rome theater, said: "In the memorable September of last year I said that professional adversaries of Fascism were too stupid to be dangerous. I confirm it now in the most explicit manner."

[Mussolini in an address Sept. 25, 1938, in Belluno, at the height of the German-Czecho-Slovak crisis over Sudetenland, taunted Fascism's adversaries "beyond the Alps" as being "too stupid to be dangerous."]

Calls Vatican Story "Nonsense."

Mussolini described as "nonsense" a rumor that the Vatican had advised the French to "stand firm" against Fascist cries for French territory.

"Stand firm is easy to say and what if in the future there is an Italian—and there will be—who tells Italians that they must stand even firmer?" he remarked.

Mussolini said that foreign anti-Fascists who expected his régime to be troubled by famine did not know Italy. He said Fascism's enemies had been dismayed by two good Italian harvests of 298,870,000 bushels of wheat.

[Italy's wheat needs have been estimated at 292,500,000 bushels annually.]

Nobody could say with certainty that Italy would have a third big harvest this year, the premier said, but he promised a fixed wheat price of about the equivalent of $2.15 a bushel.

Urged to Preserve Race.

Mussolini called on the farmers to continue tilling the soil, "preserve the race, and be ready to defend" their land "with arms."

Italy's firm insistence on a new deal from France in the Mediterranean was proclaimed by the weekly review of foreign affairs, Relazioni Internationali.

The magazine said the recent visit of Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain of Great Britain to Rome did not change Italy's objectives "by a single centimeter." It cited a rebel victory in the Spanish civil war as one of the objectives.

The magazine said that Italians recognized the French as their worst enemies. It referred to solidity of the Rome-Berlin axis with a warning that any attempt to block Italian and German ambitions would "unavoidably cause a conflict to break out."

"The hearts of the Italian people beat more than ever on the fatherland's western frontier," the magazine said. "A simple order is enough to send them across it."

FREE THOUGHT GAGGED BY IRISH BOOK CENSORSHIP

State Dictator of What People May Read.

pressed in Ireland. And authors and publishers cannot even get their cases before a judge and jury.

Ireland is a Roman Catholic country. That fact is stressed in the new constitution, although it also guarantees freedom of worship to other sects.

The fact that it is a Catholic country gives a special slant to its censorship. It means that many books which would be perfectly acceptable elsewhere are barred because they are not in line with Roman Catholic doctrins.

Irish Catholicism is strict. Books that in most countries are considered legitimate and inoffensive treatments of important topics fall under the displeasure of the Irish censors. Discussion of the desirability of birth control, for example, is barred, as well as treatises on its actual practice.

It would be hard to find a good reason for considering "Anthony Adverse" immoral or undesirable. The censors usually refuse to give the reasons for their decisions.

Compared to Chinese Action.

Some critics have compared that decision with a Chinese censor's reputed ban on "Alice in Wonderland" on the grounds that its talking animals were an insult to the human race, since it put human beings on the same footing as rabbits and other beasts.

Last year "Jackets Green," a book on the Irish troubles, written by Patrick Mulloy, an Irish civil servant, was banned for indecency. Its author later fought and lost a libel action against the London Daily Express on the grounds that its report of that fact was defamatory.

In the course of the suit the testimony of one of Ireland's censors, Prof. William Magennis of the National university, gave an interesting insight into the censors' way of working.

Refuses to Cite Indecency.

Prof. Magennis declined to point out passages in the book which he considered indecent, but explained that to the censors the book was "in general tendency indecent." On their recommendation the minister of justice banned the book.

The author contended that the book was not indecent but that "it was contrary to the board's practice and duty to give reasons for banning a book." He insisted that the book merely showed "the ugliness of war."

Despite all the hedging about the actual reason for the Irish ban, Justice Sir Anthony Hawke decided the newspaper's report that it was because of indecency probably was true and gave judgment against the author.

Censorship also extends to barring meetings that are likely to cause trouble, but there is little of that sort of ban in Ireland. It is common, however, in Northern Ireland [Ulster].

Northern Ireland's censorship is almost entirely on a political basis. Though its existence is vehemently denied, anybody who is in close touch with nationalist circles can vouch for it.

One Nationalist editor explained that there was no censorship before publication, but that the press had to be extremely careful about printing any serious criticism of the existing state of affairs. He said his paper had twice been fined.

Once published, the offending matter brings prosecution under the special powers acts. Their sweeping powers allow prosecution for anything the police consider prejudicial to law and order and government authority.

Offenders Face Jail.

If the authorities dislike a publication but have no real case against it, the editor still may be arrested and held in jail as long as they please under the special powers acts. The writ of habeas corpus has been suspended.

Anybody may be arrested as a suspect and held indefinitely without being accused of any offense. Many have been held two years and more while their suspected offenses were being "investigated," and then have been freed without any charge ever being made.

Ireland has not gone to such lengths as that, but as far as censorship of books goes, it is as strict as could be found anywhere.

MRS. ALBINA WALBERER WITH RICHARD AND ROBERT.

Mrs. Grace Landi is only 16 years old, but she is the mother of new twin boys. She said last night there is nothing unusual in the fact that she's so young to have twins, but she is proud that Nick and Frank are native born Americans. She wanted it that way. And she had to travel across the ocean to get her wish. She is in the John B. Murphy hospital. Mrs. Landi was married in Italy early last year to Antonio Landi, an architectural engineer, while visiting and studying music. When she knew she was going to become a mother, she made arrangements to return to Chicago. Her husband remained in Italy. The babies were born last Tuesday. Mrs. Landi cabled her husband. He will sail in about ten days.

The John B. Murphy hospital has another set of twin boys. They are Richard and Robert, born to Mrs. Albina Walberer, 22 years old, 1155 Lill avenue.

NAZI GIRLS OPEN NEW DRIVE ON EVIL OF DRINK

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

DRESDEN, Germany, Jan. 22.—A new campaign against the "abuse of nicotine and alcohol" among German youths was announced today by Baldur von Schirach, national youth leader. He spoke at a rally of the "faith and beauty" branch of the Hitler Girls' organization.

Founded a year ago for girls from 17 to 21 years of age, the organization has a membership of 500,000. It aims to lead girls to "natural beauty and to harmonic physical culture," to imbue them with Nazi ideals, and to "make them fit mates for Nazi youths."

Von Schirach gave them the slogan for 1939: "The year of health duties." He said that when half a million girls of their age were the pillars of a campaign against the "abuse of nicotine and alcohol" that has "a significance which may not be generally recognized at the moment but which must be clear to all in the very near future."

TREASURY IN SAFE HANDS, GERMAN PUBLIC ASSURED

Nazis Deny Regime Runs Into Inflation.

BERLIN, Jan. 22.—(AP)—The Nazi press today denied that Reichsfuehrer Hitler's dropping of Dr. Hjalmar Schacht and his conservative "no men" from the Reichsbank meant the régime was running head on into uncontroled inflation.

Party interpreters of the Fuehrer's sudden shakeup admitted that Walther Funk, economics minister and the new president of the Reichsbank, lacked Schacht's financial experience, but said he was "not the man to thrust two open hands into the treasury."

Schacht was dismissed as president of the Reichsbank on Friday and two of his longtime associates, Friedrich W. Dreyse and Ernst Huelse, were ousted from the Reichsbank directorate yesterday. Dreyse was succeeded in the vice presidency by Rudolf Brinkmann.

Brinkmann Trained in Bank.

The interpreters pointed out that Brinkmann was trained in the Reichsbank and indicated he would assume active direction of it.

He was one of Schacht's four principal aids when the ousted financial expert was creating Germany's complicated currency and foreign trade control system between 1933 and 1937. The two parted company in 1937, however, when Funk succeeded Schacht as economics minister and Brinkmann then joined Funk.

Through the circuitous way of the denials the German public learned of fears expressed abroad that inflation might be in the offing in Germany.

The elimination of the conservative opposition from the national bank—as previously had been done from two other citadels, the foreign office and the army—was defended as "logical and necessary in a totalitarian state."

Paper Praises Funk.

Many observers, the Frankfurter Zeitung said, predicted in 1933 when the Nazis came to power that the régime was going "full sail ahead into inflation." This did not happen, it declared, and Funk has been charged with preventing it from happening now.

Hitler has not indicated what he wants Schacht to do in his post of minister without portfolio. Some observers believed that the almost legendary character in German post-war finance would pass into oblivion as has Baron Konstantin von Neurath.

Von Neurath, another conservative, remained as foreign minister when the Nazis assumed power, but was made chairman of the inner foreign office council, now never spoken about, in the shakeup last Feb. 4. That reorganization brought Joachim von Ribbentrop to the head of the foreign ministry.

As an extra service to Tribune Lost and Found advertisers, all such ads are kept for three months after publication in a special register open to the public at the Tribune Public Service Offices, 1 S. Dearborn St., and in Tribune Tower, 435 N. Michigan Ave.

To lose a sales book with its important records can prove as great a misfortune to a salesman as the loss of a ring or a fur piece would be to you.

Whenever you lose anything of value, be sure to telephone a Lost and Found want ad to the Chicago Tribune. Thousands of dollars' worth of property is restored each year to owners who advertise in the Lost and Found column of the Tribune.

Regardless of what you may have lost, or where in Chicago or suburbs you may have lost it, there is a good chance that a Tribune reader will find it.

Every day of the week, the Tribune is read by more than 710,000 families right in metropolitan Chicago. This is practically as many as read any two other Chicago newspapers combined.

11 REPUBLICANS IN HOUSE STUDY ARMS PROGRAM

Committee Cons Plans of Administration.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 22.—[Special.]—Representative Joseph W. Martin Jr., minority leader of the house, announced today the creation of a special committee of the Republican membership to "examine with particular care the rearmament proposals of the administration." The committee is composed of eleven members with Representative James W. Wadsworth [R., N. Y.] as chairman.

"National defense," said Mr. Martin "is in no sense a partisan issue; but it is a large concern of national policy which touches directly the welfare, prosperity and security of every home in the land. In this aspect of the discussion, the Republican members of the house recognize a great responsibility to the American people.

"In an extended executive session on Jan. 20 the caucus surveyed the whole field of foreign relations and defense, and agreed upon three principal concerns of Republican legislative policy, as follows:

"1. To insure a sound integration of the land, naval, air, and industrial segments of the defense program in the interest of maximum efficiency and economy.

"2 To invite a clear definition of the fixed policy of the United States as a measuring rod for the whole scheme of defense; and

"3. To make certain that the projected rearmament program shall be directed exclusively to the defense and security of the nation, rather than toward dangerous intervention in the international frictions and discords of other peoples.

"The Republican party is committed to the proposition that the American people are determined to direct their energies, not toward war, but toward peace."

IDEAL WEATHER BRIGHTENS CROP OUTLOOK FOR '39

Subsoil Soaked Despite Subnormal Rains.

BY FRANK RIDGWAY.

Ideal fall and winter weather has produced a favorable crop outlook this year. There have been no prolonged freezes. Consequently the soil has been able to soak up most of the rain and water from melting snow. There has been a shortage of moisture in most corn belt states since the first of September. But the subsoil already has taken in a fair amount of moisture and spring rains are yet to come before planting time.

A protective midwinter blanket of snow now covers much of the wheat, rye, and barley growing areas. More is needed in some sections, particularly in the small grain growing region west of the Mississippi river. Fall sown wheat in Illinois started into the winter in better condition than a year ago in this state and nearly equals the ten year average from 1926 to 1935. The condition of wheat for the entire country was slightly below normal at the beginning of cold weather.

Fall Sown Grain Holds Own.

Despite a shortage of rain and snow during the last few months, fall sown grains and new seedings of grasses and legumes have not been badly damaged. The chief danger of these crops being killed from alternate freezing and thawing will come in the spring when the frost begins to leave the ground.

The weather bureau reports that the precipitation in Illinois was 3 inches, or 73 per cent of normal in the last four months of 1938. Wisconsin and Iowa are the only two principal corn belt states that had more than normal moisture during that period.

The accompanying table shows normal and actual precipitation, and the percentage of normal precipitation for September, October, November, and December:

State—	Normal precipitation [inches].	Actual precipitation [inches].	Pct. of normal.
Michigan	10.62	7.71	72
Indiana	11.36	7.96	70
Illinois	11.40	8.40	73
Iowa	8.98	9.87	109
Minnesota	6.65	6.58	99
Wisconsin	9.27	11.17	120
Ohio	11.04	8.91	80
Missouri	11.87	9.38	77
Kansas	6.90	4.08	58
Nebraska	3.29	2.67	81

Speculate on Size of Crop.

Farmers throughout the rich grain and live stock states of the central west soon will begin speculating on the crop outlook for 1939. Experienced farmers know the gamble they must take on the weather and pests.

Despite the good start the crops face many vicissitudes before they are harvested. There may be a parching drouth or a pest outbreak. Rainy weather may delay planting. The crops may be mature when a rainstorm sweeps over the fields ahead of the harvesters. Wise farmers never count their chickens before they are hatched. They know that farming is a gamble.

However, the old timers know that in this region total crop failures are unknown. An individual farmer may lose all his crop. But his misfortune is offset by other producers in the Mississippi and Missouri valleys. No one ever can tell how big the crop will be until it is harvested and stored.

Surprises Are Common.

Surprises are common. Farmers in the Chicago area remember the unfavorable conditions in the spring of 1937. Spring rains were so heavy that oat sowing and corn planting were much delayed. Few expected the crops to mature. But favorable growing weather and a long warm fall ripened the corn and turned an apparent failure into a bumper crop.

Farmers got another surprise last year. Few had expected bumper corn crops two years in succession. Last year the temperature in the central west grain belt ranged from 2 to 4 per cent above average. Precipitation was above normal over most of the corn belt, varying from 5 per cent below normal in Nebraska to 137 per cent above normal in Wisconsin.

Corn yields per acre in the last two years, and per cent of normal follow:

State.	Yield per ac. 1937.	1938.	Aver. 1923-32.	% of 10 1938 yield yr. av.
Michigan	35	36.5	29.8	122
Indiana	45	41	34.6	118
Illinois	47	45	36	125
Iowa	45	45.5	37.6	121
Minnesota	36	35	31.2	112
Wisconsin	31.5	38.5	32	120
Ohio	43	44	36.6	120
Missouri	27	25	25	100
Kansas	11.5	20	19.3	103
Nebraska	10.5	14.5	24.4	60

Corn yields usually go above normal in years when there is the proper combination of rainfall and sunshine, as was experienced last year. With the fall and winter temperatures above normal and a lack of deep snows and rains, farmers' feed bills have been comparatively small. There will be much grain and roughage left over from crops of the last two years for use next summer and fall.

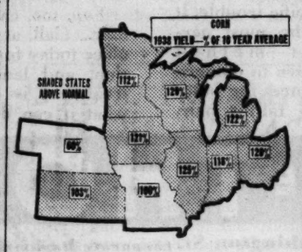
Cause and Effect

(Story in adjoining column.)

Unusually warm weather in the ten corn belt states last year, plus—

Precipitation that was above normal over most of the corn belt, yielded—



A bumper crop of corn, the only state that fell below being Nebraska, which also was the only one deficient in precipitation.

Although precipitation for the last four months of 1938 was below normal in all except two of the corn belt states, other growing conditions have been favorable and spring rains are expected to make up the deficiency.

2D HINES TRIAL IN RACKET CASE TO OPEN TODAY

Difficulty Is Expected in Selection of Jury.

BY WILLIAM FULTON.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 22.—[Special.]—The second trial of the Hines case will open tomorrow. District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey, New York City's rackets prosecutor, again will conduct the prosecution in person.

Judge Nott.

The first trial of Tammany Leader James J. [Jimmy] Hines on charges of selling political protection to the policy game racketeers was halted by Tammany Judge Ferdinand Pecora last fall on a technicality. That fiasco cost the taxpayers $50,000.

Pecora declared a mistrial after 1,165,000 words of testimony had been spread on the record and Dewey had revealed what he had up his sleeve.

Jury Selection to Be Difficult.

The revelations of a political-criminal alliance in New York City, which came out in the first trial, will make it difficult to select a jury next week.

The second trial will be in a new setting, with several new characters. Hines will be tried this time in the antique courthouse housing the General Sessions court, which has jurisdiction over criminal cases only. The first trial was in the new Supreme court building.

Judge Charles Cooper Nott Jr. of General Sessions, a veteran of twenty-five years on the bench, will replace Judge Pecora, an assistant district attorney under Tammany régimes who held several posts in Washington under Roosevelt and recently was elevated to the Supreme court of New York county.

On Bench Since 1913.

Judge Nott, who is 69 years old, was elected to the bench as a Republican in 1913 on the basis of his record as an assistant district attorney. He is highly regarded by both Democratic and G. O. P. members of the bar. This fact was attested to in 1927 when among the jurist's backers for another fourteen year term was Gov. Alfred E. Smith, who became the Democratic candidate for President the following year.

Dewey, who is 36 years old, is a hard worker and is tremendously resourceful. Those who have known him for some time and have watched him operate are expecting some surprises during the second trial.

Slight of build, wearing a small mustache and quiet in demeanor except in the heat of battle, Dewey is the antithesis of Lloyd Paul Stryker, chief of the defense counsel galaxy.

Stryker, who presents a striking figure in court with his heavy frame, florid face, and shock of bushy gray hair, is an eloquent pleader, although his thunderous voice has a tendency to shake down the rafters.

Hines, the most powerful single leader in Tammany Hall and an important cog in the Roosevelt-Farley machine here, is a genial rogue who hobnobbed with the late Dutch Schultz, gang leader and boss of the policy racket, until assassins killed Schultz in a Newark saloon in 1935.

A one-time blacksmith who fought his way upward with his fists at the start of his career, Hines represents the old Tammany "politics for profits" school.

Boss Friend of Roosevelt.

The Tammany boss has been a White House visitor and President Roosevelt once praised him for his "humanitarian acts." These acts, which consisted principally of handing out turkeys to the poor in his district at Thanksgiving and Christmas, were discontinued when voters turned down Harold Hastings, Hines' candidate for district attorney, in 1937 and elected Dewey instead.

The testimony of three gang aids of Dutch Schultz who pleaded guilty and appeared as witnesses for the state at the first trial is awaited with interest. While Justice Pecora relinquished his jurisdiction over the case he kept the right to sentence the three on their guilty plea. There is speculation whether they will be as enthusiastic to tell their stories before a new judge when another court has the power to fix their penalties.

J. Richard [Dixie] Davis, a disbarred attorney whom Schultz called "The Kid Mouthpiece," is one of the three state's witnesses. The other two are George Weinberg, a gambler who handled business affairs for Schultz, and Harry Schoenhaus, an accountant who kept books for the policy game enterprise.

TRUCKERS HOLD OFF STRIKE TO TRY FOR PEACE

Governor Warns Union Law Will Prevail.

Detroit, Mich., Jan. 22.—[Special.]—A threatened state-wide strike of truck drivers, called for tomorrow morning, will be delayed at least until noon as a result of an agreement obtained tonight by Mayor Richard W. Reading.

The Michigan Teamsters' union council had called out 30,000 drivers in sympathy with Local 271 of Detroit in its fight with the Brewery Workers' union over control of beer truck drivers.

Representatives of the brewery union and the teamsters met tonight with a mayor's committee, delayed the strike, and agreed to meet tomorrow morning in a further attempt to settle the jurisdictional dispute.

Strike Marked by Fights.

Both unions are affiliated with the American Federation of Labor and each claims the right to contracts with the Detroit breweries. Members of the teamsters' union kept beer trucks off Detroit streets for three days last week.

Fighting was widespread when the brewery workers attempted to deliver beer and at least twenty-nine men were injured and two automobiles were overturned and damaged badly. Police were put on twelve hour shifts and ordered to stop any further demonstrations.

Yesterday beer was delivered by brewery workers under protection of police.

Gov. Frank D. Fitzgerald, who took office only three weeks ago, issued a warning in Lansing that all state law enforcement agencies would be used to keep order, force obedience to the laws, and see that deliveries of necessities were uninterrupted.

Mayor Reading also warned the union that Detroit police would not allow interuption of necessary deliveries.

Governor to Use State Power.

"The state," said Gov. Fitzgerald, "stands ready at all times to use its forces in any crisis to see that law and order prevail, to see that court orders are carried out and to see that deliveries of necessities are made."

Fitzgerald, who defeated Frank Murphy last November, charged in his campaign that Murphy, now attorney general of the United States, had permitted strikers to override the law in the disastrous sitdown strikes that disrupted the automobile industry in 1937.

ARRAIGN MODEL POLICEMAN FOR BURGLARY TODAY

Philip E. Reiman, suspended Evanston "model" policeman, will be arraigned today before Municipal Judge Harry H. Porter of Evanston charged with the $45 burglary of an Evanston sporting goods store. Reiman confessed Friday after his police notebook was found in the place. He entered it Thursday night—his day off.

Meanwhile other Evanston policemen were investigating eight burglaries which had been committed in the same manner as that to which Reiman confessed. The other burglaries occurred during the last year.

Reiman, 45 years old, is married and the father of two sons.

BADGELESS HERO TO CARRY POLICE ROLE INTO COURT

When Alex Gerulis and William Severa are arraigned in the Automobile court tomorrow on a charge of stealing an automobile, Elwood Zuley, a private citizen who aspires to be a policeman, will be there. Zuley arrested them.

His enterprise has interested officials of the police department, largely because he now is on the police eligibility lists; but he's No. 1866. Lieut. Richard Barry said yesterday he hoped some way could be found to put Zuley on the force without waiting his turn.

Two days ago Trafic Policeman Leon Czajka arrested Gerulis and Severa at Market and Adams streets after a chase. A moment later Czajka collapsed from a heart attack and died. His prisoners fled.

Zuley, who is 23 years old, and lives at 4120 Wilcox street, saw the incident. He grabbed the stricken policeman's revolver, chased and caught Gerulis and Severa. The two confessed yesterday they had stolen the car in which they were riding when trafic policemen sought to question them.

MRS. HUENKEMEIER RITES TODAY.

Freeport, Ill., Jan. 22.—[Special.]—Funeral services will be conducted tomorrow for Mrs. William R. Huenkemeier, 61 years old, wife of a lumber merchant. She was a daughter of the late Leonard Stoskopf, who practiced law here for many years.

WHY are Mrs. Snyder's so GOOD?

Well, it might be just the luscious, finer things I put in them; or, the careful, skillful ways I make them; or, perhaps the shining spic and span-ness in my kitchens . . . but it isn't ONE of those reasons, it's ALL THREE that make Mrs. Snyder's so delicious!

"PORCELANNA"

By CALEB

WE had just finished looking at a lovely bit: a nosegay of violets in a classic bowl—the whole affair so dainty it rested in the palm of my hand. Royal Staffordshire china. "Beautiful, exquisite; but fragile, and—expensive," I suggested. The lady nodded, and said: "Wait."

Quickly returning, she bore in her hand another nosegay of violets—far larger, glowing with Nature's own purple, and bearing that lustrous sheen and delicacy of tint so characteristic of—"Porcelain?" I hazarded. "No," said the lady. "China?" I ventured. "No," said the lady . . . "although—"

Then she smiled, and really told me the story; and it was too good to keep. "New," she began. "And that's a word not often used in the flower world any more. Also, different. And exclusive." Pointing to a nearby galaxy of Talisman roses: "These new floral creations are Porcelanna: a secret, original treatment of colored papers, by repeated dippings in a special lacquer coating, which gives us flowers looking so like porcelain you were ready to swear they were porcelain.

"And no one would blame you." The lady led me to a nearby shadowbox, in whose illuminated niche was seated an aristocratic duchess in real porcelain, with a porcelain page-boy at her left, offering his own version of the violet nosegay. "Notice those four glorious roses behind her," said the lady. I did. They were beyond words. "Porcelain, too," I remarked. And the lady laughed. "No—Porcelanna," she corrected.

Then she handed me a sheaf of gladioli done in the new medium, and I could feel the difference: a lightness and flexibility both foreign to china and porcelain. "These, you see, are also bendable and workable for shaping, when grouped. They are washable—you merely dip in warm soapsuds, and shake. And they are non-breakable"—dropping one and picking it up for my inspection. "Yet"—holding the spray from her—"you see how porcelain-like?" Turning the tag, "And how inexpensive?" . . .

Made in a quiet little factory on Staten Island, by Italian artists skilled in floralcraft using the new method, Porcelanna roses, violets, petunias, cosmos, crocuses, hollyhocks and rubrum lilies lend to our second-floor Wabash store a transfiguring garden-touch that makes you certain it's June—all the time that you know it's January!

Reds' Capital Is Wrecked; Rail Line Damaged.

SHANGHAI, Jan. 22.—(AP)—Far-flung operations in the Chinese-Japanese war were scattered today over a 1,500 mile line the length of the land and from the eastern coast to sectors more than 600 miles inland.

Japanese reported that their war planes:

1. Heavily bombed Yenan, in northern Shensi province, nerve center of the Chinese Eighth army, destroying the communist party's headquarters, the army's headquarters, and Yenan university, educational fountain head for young communists.

2. Attacked Weinan, in central Shensi on the Lunghai railway, halfway between Tungkwan and Sian, seriously damaging the headquarters of the Chinese 1st division, warehouses, the railway station and tracks.

3. Raided Pakhoi, in southwestern Kwangtung province, near French Indo-China, and Watlam, in southern Kwangsi province, northeast of Pakhoi. Japanese advices said barracks were destroyed and Chinese troops were machine gunned in the Pakhoi attack, while barracks were bombed in the Watlam operation.

Aim at Munitions Supply.

The raid on Pakhoi was seen as a possible prelude to the long threatened landing of Japanese soldiers there in an effort to cut off munitions imports said to be flowing from French Indo-China.

Some foreign observers, however, held that the Japanese were delaying efforts to land forces because they were hopeful of undermining Chinese solidarity through negotiations with Gens. Li. Tsung-jen and Pai Chung-hsi, the dominant leaders in Kwangsi province.

The two generals revolted twice against Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek and were his bitter enemies until the fight against Japan gave them all a common cause.

They were acclaimed for their direction of operations last April in Shantung province when the Japanese were given a crushing defeat at Taierhchwang. In December, Gen. Pai, as commander of the Chinese forces in South China, was mobilizing the masses of Kwangsi province to meet the threat of a new Japanese offensive.

Furnish Many Soldiers.

Japanese military officials estimated today that 150,000 Chinese soldiers were stationed in the province in addition to 200,000 men from Kwangsi who have taken up positions in the neighboring Kwangtung province.

While the two generals have lined up with Chiang, observers here believed it was not impossible that they might consider a compromise with the Japanese under a threat to lay waste to their province.

Chinese reported that guerrillas had inaugurated a series of surprise attacks throughout the Amoy area, on the eastern coast, killing eighty Japanese, wounding 200, and destroying six supply depots.

Chinese advices also said that severe fighting continued in the Kingshan and Tienmen sectors northwest of Hankow, fallen provisional capital, with the Japanese still unable to break through in their efforts to advance to the west and northwest. Tienmen is approximately fifty-five miles air line west of Hankow. Kingshan is about thirty miles northwest of Tienmen.

Chinese Block Western Drive.

After a two day battle, Chinese reported their forces had repulsed a Japanese column from Paotow, in western Suiyuan province, the western terminus of the Peking-Suiyuan railway, which was attempting to advance into northwestern China.

Shanghai exporters received telegrams from Chefoo, North China port which is in Japanese hands, stating that import and export restrictions had been lifted until Feb. 1. Japanese authorities in Chefoo had set up a system of import and export control involving exchange regulations administered through a special office. The office had refused all export permits since Jan. 15. Today's telegrams said some permits were now being granted.

Visitors Barred from Sick Room of George F. Harding

Visitors will be barred from calling upon George F. Harding for several days. The Republican national committeeman underwent a gall bladder operation Saturday in the Passavant hospital. However, Dr. J. R. Buchbinder, who issued this order yesterday, said that Mr. Harding's condition was following a "favorable course." The political leader is 70 years old.

ABANDONED BABY.

A baby boy about a day old was found yesterday in the hallway of a building at 1228 South Wabash avenue. The infant weighed just an ounce less than seven pounds. He was wrapped in two faded blue blankets and appeared to be in good health. Policemen James Madden and William Hansen took him to the St. Vincent's orphanage.

RELIEF PROMISED AFTER NEAR ZERO WEATHER TODAY

Warmer weather this afternoon is expected to snap the winter's third and briefest cold wave which moved in Saturday night. But before dawn today, Forecaster C. A. Donnel said, the mercury will be down to zero or slightly above in the city and a few degrees below in the suburbs. The coldest this winter was 2.5 degrees above Dec. 28.

The temperature began dropping rapidly Saturday as gusty northwest winds whipped in the Alaskan cold. At 3 p. m. Saturday the mercury was 43. It fell steadily, reaching 9 above at 6:40 a. m. yesterday. It rose a few points under warm sun and clear skies, but began slipping after sundown. A shift in the wind to the west and southwest today is expected to bring relief, Mr. Donnel said.

JAPAN WILL NOT ADOPT FASCISM, PREMIER SAYS

Hiranuma Pledges to Rule by Constitution.

BY KIMPEI SHEBA.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO, Jan. 22.—Fascism in Japan was dealt a severe blow today as Premier Baron Kiichiro Hiranuma pledged full respect for the constitution and parliamentary politics. He went further and declared he has never favored or hoped for a régime of dictatorship in Japan.

Premier Hiranuma.

The premier's statement was made in the lower house of the diet [parliament] in reply to a question by Taiichi Kato, member of the Minseito, the major party in Japan.

Not Suited to Japan.

Kato asserted the world at large is under the mistaken belief that the cabinet of Baron Hiranuma is Fascist. He said even many Japanese think so and asked the premier to remove such a misunderstanding.

Friends of Baron Hiranuma said his stand on Fascism is similar to that of former Premier Prince Fumimaro Konoe, who declared that dictatorships such as those in Germany and Italy are not suited to Japan.

Contrary to general expectations Premier Hiranuma is not showing any definite swing to the right. Particularly in foreign policy there is an indication he will make every effort to seek a conciliatory settlement of the disputes with the United States and England over Japanese policies in China.

Assails Japan's Diplomacy.

TOKIO, Jan. 22.—(AP)—The outspoken opposition of the United States, Great Britain and France to Japan's "new order" in East Asia persisted today in parliament.

Masazumi Ando, chief secretary of the Seiyukai, one of the principal political parties, criticized Japan's diplomacy and stressed the importance of recognition by the three occidental powers of the "new order."

"That the government has failed to convince the three powers regarding its real intentions," Ando declared, "is perhaps due to the lack of sincerity in Japan's diplomacy.

"To have these foreign powers recognize the fact that creation of a new order in East Asia is vitally necessary to Japan's very existence should be the first stage in its proposed creation. Explanations and statements are not sufficient."

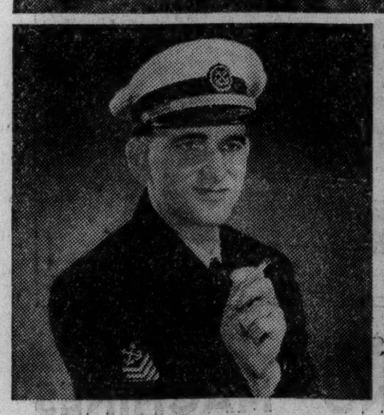
LET UP—LIGHT UP A CAMEL

SMOKERS FIND THAT CAMEL'S COSTLIER TOBACCOS ARE SOOTHING TO THE NERVES

101 STORIES UP on the world's tallest building, Sidney Evert swings in the wind with only a frail scaffold between him and—well, it's 1100 feet to the street. His work is to repair windows in the tower of the Empire State Building. Nerve straining, you bet, but as Sid Evert says: "A fellow with jumpy nerves wouldn't last long on my job. So I make sure to ease the tension on my nerves whenever I can. I let up—light up a Camel. I find Camels are soothing to the nerves." Smokers in a wide variety of nerve-nagging occupations, nerve-straining sports turn to Camels for the same reason. They find it pays to ease nerve tension every now and then. So they let up—light up a Camel!



TRAPPED ON A BLAZING WRECK, Captain Hans Milton displayed courage and nerve-power that won him head-lines from coast to coast. He says: "On the schooner Pioneer, afire 400 miles out of Halifax, we had a little food and water and some Camels. Those Camels were a great comfort through the nerve strain of worry and danger. It's a rule with me, whenever I feel my nerves getting tense, keyed-up, to let up—light up a Camel."

"RUNNING A HOME is a full-time job," says Mrs. Frank E. Smith, housewife and hostess, "and every minute of it can be nerve straining. Cleaning up, planning meals, social affairs would run me pretty ragged (and add years to my looks) if I didn't protect my nerves. My way of avoiding jumpy nerves is this: The minute I feel tense and 'edgy,' I pause—I let up—light up a Camel. I find Camels really soothing, comforting to the nerves."

We don't usually look after our nerves that well. Perhaps you have often willed yourself on ...hour after hour at a task...ignoring nerve strain. Try breaking that nerve strain occasionally—pause now and then—LET UP—LIGHT UP A CAMEL! HOUSE TO DECIDE PARTY CHANGERS' FATE THIS WEEK

Expect Coalition Action to Free 100,000 Voters.

BY PERCY WOOD.

Voters will know this week whether they can disregard the political affiliation they took last April and participate either as Republicans or Democrats in the Chicago mayoral primary on Feb. 28.

The question will be before the Illinois house of representatives in the form of the Bidwill bill which passed the senate last Thursday. Predictions are that it will be approved by the lower chamber and will be signed by Acting Governor Stelle.

Republican leaders are strongly supporting the measure in the belief that it will bring more than 100,000 Chicago Republicans back into their own primary after an excursion into the Democratic primary fight last April.

Goodspeed Wires Legislators.

Charles B. Goodspeed, treasurer of the G. O. P. national committee, has sent telegrams urging its passage to the Republican house majority. The wires will be on the members' desks when they reconvene tomorrow.

In addition there is a statement from A. K. Stiles, chairman of the Republican state central committee, declaring passage is for the best interests of the party. Senator Arthur J. Bidwill of River Forest presented the measure at the request of Edward F. Moore, chairman, and members of the Cook county central committee.

Since it carries an emergency clause, the bill must receive 102 votes in order to become effective immediately. There are noly 79 members in the Republican house majority but Democratic support, it is believed, will be forthcoming.

Most of the Chicago Democrats have said privately that they will vote for it. They will lend their aid, they said, because they would prefer to have the Republicans back in their own party at the primary. Many downstate Democrats are also understood to be friendly.

Sales Tax Coalition.

The same sort of a Republican-Democratic coalition is likely to be placed behind the sales tax extension bill supported by the state administration and Acting Gov. Stelle. This measure would continue the use of the third cent of the levy as the principal source of the $3,900,000 monthly contribution the state makes for the unemployed.

The sales tax bill must also receive 102 votes. An effort may be made tomorrow to amend it by lowering the monthly contribution.

O'BRIEN'S GROUP FROM 29TH WARD BACKS COURTNEY

Resolutions indorsing State's Attorney Courtney for the Democratic nomination for mayor were passed yesterday by the Martin J. O'Brien Democratic organization of the 29th ward. The meeting was called by O'Brien, regular committeeman of the ward, who on Saturday returned from an unsuccessful effort to see Gov. Horner at Miami Beach, Fla. O'Brien did not discuss the trip.

Mayor Kelly and his running mate, Thomas S. Gordon, candidate for city treasurer, and Ludwig D. Schreiber, candidate for city clerk, will speak at a meeting of the Illinois Woman's Democratic club in the Morrison hotel tomorrow at 2 p. m. Mrs. Elizabeth A. Conkey, county commissioner and Democratic national committeewoman, will preside.

A Polish-American branch of the regular Democratic headquarters will be opened in the Morrison today with Victor L. Schlaeger, clerk of the Superior court, in charge.

GREEN WILL TELL HIS PROGRAM TO BETTER SCHOOLS

Calls Education Biggest Business in City.

BY GEORGE TAGGE.

Dwight H. Green will disclose his plans for improving the Chicago public schools in a radio address tonight. He said yesterday this talk will be one of the most important in his campaign for the Republican nomination for mayor.

Biggest Business in City.

Green will speak from WMAQ at 9:30 to 9:45 p. m. His address will be the third in a series which will be broadcast each Monday until the primary on Feb. 28. The sponsor is the Committee of Ten Thousand, an organization of independent voters.

"I will tell what I think should be done to make ours the greatest school system in the country," Green said. "Some of the revelations I shall make in regard to the school system will be startling.

"Almost 70 per cent of the money which taxpayers pay into the city coffers goes for education. That makes it the biggest business that we have in Chicago. My stand will be made definite and clear."

Green will be introduced to the radio audience by Charles F. Axelson, trustee of the University of Chicago and chairman of the alumni association, of which the candidate is a member.

Meeting in Green's Ward.

After the radio talk Green will hurry to a meeting in Belmont hall at Belmont avenue and Clark street, in his own ward, the 46th. He will be introduced by Judge Oscar F. Nelson, president of the ward organization and long a leader in the G. O. P. About 1,000 persons are expected to attend.

Earlier speakers on this program will include John W. Chapman, candidate for nomination as city clerk, and Clement A. Nance, who was named by the regular G. O. P. ward committeemen to seek the office of city treasurer.

Arthur C. Lueder, former postmaster, will address a 4th ward meeting at 4905 Cottage Grove avenue this evening. Grenville Beardsley, former assistant state's attorney, will speak at a 7th ward assembly at 7517 Yates avenue.

STABBED TO DEATH; KILLER FLEES.

Joseph Parker, 27 years old, colored, 2745 Indiana avenue, was stabbed to death yesterday by an unidentified colored man in front of 3726 Indiana avenue.

NATIONAL CANNERS

A&P extends to each of you greetings and a hearty welcome.

Down through the corridors of Time we have walked side by side, each genuinely interested in the other's problems; each sincerely concerned with maintaining the highest standards of quality to the end that the families of America may partake abundantly of the handiworks of Nature which you so skillfully prepare and pack.

As grocers to the nation, we have watched your branch of the food industry grow by leaps and bounds; viewed with admiration your achievement of bringing an ever increasing variety of fine foods to the tables of America's 130,000,000 people. And through your tireless efforts we have witnessed a dramatic change in the eating habits of the nation. So sweeping has it been that today the American people enjoy more good, nourishing foods than any other nation on earth.

You, like A&P, are constantly searching for new and improved ways to surpass the enviable record of the past and present. Collectively, we must shun the old adage "Leave well enough alone." You must push on in the company of science, invention and efficiency, constantly experimenting to perfect methods which will further the interests of both consumers and your industry. We, meantime, must busy ourselves with lowering the cost of distribution, for an ever widening consumption of canned foods can be created only by getting these foods to the consumers at prices that will enable them to buy more with the money they have available for feeding their families.

We pledge to you—to the producers—and to the consumers, our full determination to effect new efficiencies in the A&P system of food distribution, that our mutual ambitions may be readily and fully attained.

Again, to each of you, we extend a hearty welcome and the hope that this Convention will go down in your records as the most successful of all.

LET THE NATION KNOW.

Maj. Gen. Arnold, chief of the army air corps, told the house military affairs committee the other day all the details of the army plans for aviation expansion. He told the committee what the army air authorities want but not why they want it. This is true likewise of the Hepburn report. The nation is asked for the expenditure of large sums of money but it is left in the dark on why they must be spent.

Congress and the nation are entitled to know why. They are entitled to know the power of foreign air armaments, not merely in generalities but in the facts which are supposed to justify the American program. There is no reason to keep these facts a secret from the American congress or people. They are not secrets to the foreign governments we are supposed to be preparing to resist.

Military secrecy is 90 per cent bunk. The plea sometimes covers up the lack of knowledge of the witness or the lack of adequate support for the proposed program. It is an old story. For generations it was customary for officers in the artillery to take an oath not to betray the secrets of the profession. Finally Prince von Bülow gave this secret away. The secret, he said, was that there were no secrets.

Instead of merely presenting what we are supposed to need for our defense, we should be told, for example, how fast foreign planes are flying and how effective they are. We should be told with how many hostile planes we are practically threatened, how great are the fuel and other supplies in probably unfriendly countries, how much preparedness is required by aggressors located at long distance from us. What is the actual proof of the destructive power of aviation bombing and the value of the defensive? Demonstrations of the accuracy and effect of aerial bombing will not betray the machinery used.

In short, congress and the nation should not be asked to accept blindly the conclusion of flying Brahmins or the devices of ambitious politicians with ulterior purposes.

How far the planning for increased armament is subjected to diplomatic and political purpose is well illustrated by the proposal to build a major naval base in the Island of Guam, a project which has no justification if the nation's desire for a defensive foreign policy is to be respected. Guam is nearly 5,000 miles from Hawaii. It is only 1,300 from Japan and in the midst of Japanese islands. To protect and utilize it we must have a fleet capable of covering communications, passing through a network of Japanese islands, and we must maintain a major naval and air force nearly 5,000 miles away from Hawaii. The cost of this would be tremendous. What is there to justify it if we are leaving the Philippines and are to follow a policy of nonaggression in the Pacific?

Congress should insist upon knowing all the relevant facts which should regulate our expenditures and shape the development of our naval, air, and army establishments. And this knowledge should be given to the nation fully and frankly.

THE GOING OF THE WIND.

Margaret Mitchell, the author of "Gone with the Wind," says that her fan mail from the southern states indicates general approval of the selection of Vivian Leigh, the English actress, to play Scarlett O'Hara, the Irish girl who embodies southern American womanhood in this celebrated novel of the civil war, at last to be made into a moving picture. On the other hand, the mail indicates that the northerners disapprove of the selection of the English actress to play the girl who is the great southern belle and fighting Irish heroine. It would be interesting to know why the northerners object, if it is any of their business, the south being satisfied on a point which touches it deeply. Whom do the northerners want for the part, Mary Pickford or Shirley Temple?

In the south the admirers of Scarlett seem to be sure that the English actress will have the proper accent and idiom and will not say, "O, lud!" when she should say "begorry" meaning "Law's a massy!" It may be that southern critical opinion reverts sympathetically to the old war accord which was supposed to link the aristocracies of the confederacy and England and finds in the selection of Miss Leigh a delicate tribute to Salisbury, Gladstone, and Earl Russell. To such a sentiment the north, now happily reunited to the south, will have no objection. Jack Garner, the silent fisherman of Uvalde, may have his own way. He might even be taken into studio consultation in the production of "Gone with the Wind." That's where it's going.

When the script writers, directors, and production managers have done their work with the character of Scarlett, Miss Leigh need not fear any injury to her future casting as an actress. There will be no blight. Something of Little Eva will undoubtedly creep into the stormy life of the O'Hara gal and she will be much more sinned against than sinning. The person who must be looking at the production of the picture with some uncertainty, if not with some dismay, is Clark Gable, who may come out of the experience of being Rhett Butler feeling that he has become as stereotyped to a rôle as Boris Karloff. He may fear that his public will never want to see him again as any one whose moral inhibitions are greater or whose social life is less tainted than Mr. Butler's, the distinguished vicemonger of the story. Mr. Gable will do his best, if he doesn't weaken, but the perfect casting is impossible because the Chicagoan who would have been a natural for the part is still detained in a federal penitentiary, although he was recently transferred from Alcatraz.

THE LOW NUMBER ELITE.

The American democracy, democratic as it undoubtedly is, still finds some fascination in distinctions and in little tokens of them which, although not to be compared with the decorations of a royalist society, still are thought to have their value. When it was first proposed that automobiles should carry plates with numbers identifying them, the possessors, then few per thousand, objected with great bitterness. They fought the first bill in the legislature, declaring that it was outrageous to number them as if they were convicts. That was an unreasonable objection and, even if it hadn't been, it would have been of no avail because nobody liked an automobilist anyway in those days.

Now, for the most part, a number is accepted as a matter of course and the only thing that bothers the majority of automobile owners is that they can't remember their number when they're asked for it or sometimes when they're looking for their car. There is a pride in low numbers and the possessor observes that he is regarded with considerable respect, if not by all his fellow citizens at least by many of the police. It is assumed that the car with a low number contains a person of prime political importance, otherwise he would not have it.

The low number indicates, rightly or wrongly, a member of the "I Gotta Drag" club. An elite is thus created and the secretary of state makes it possible for the possessors to retain their little badges of distinction. Occasionally a low number changes hands, but the intimation of influence and distinction remains. This is a shabby elevation of personality, an attribution of importance and dignity which could be dispensed with and should be.

All plates should be issued without consideration for persons and there should be no intimation whatever that governing authorities look with favor upon the citizen whose car displays one of the favorite low numbers which high hat the ordinary run of drivers and too much impress the law enforcement officers.

AN AWAKENING OF THE FARMERS.

The Wisconsin Agricultural alliance is to be commended for the way it is approaching the difficult question of amending the state's labor relations act. In too many instances heretofore farm blocs have been won to toleration of oppressive legislation by the simple device of exempting them from its provisions.

The Wisconsin labor relations law was enacted as a class measure to serve the interests of certain organized groups. To exempt the farmers from its effects would be merely to create another special interest group.

The agricultural alliance, which represents some 80,000 farmers, is viewing the state law objectively from the viewpoint of all citizens rather than from a special farm interest. Instead of asking privilege under it they are asking that it be revised to protect and recognize equally the interests of all citizens and all groups.

Their plan states as a fundamental premise for a labor code that there are three major interests to any labor dispute, the public, the employé, and the employer. It declares it the policy of the state to protect and promote each of these, with due regard always to the rights of the others.

These farmers have awakened to the fact that the state cannot accord special status to any without a corresponding loss to all not within the special group. They have a vivid memory of plowing under their spinach, of their milk cans dumped on the roadside, and of the invasion of their coöperative dairy plants under laws which in giving labor organizations special privilege have deprived others of rights they have considered inherent.

A bill prepared by the farm council proposes to place jurisdiction in labor disputes under the state industrial commission; to substitute, it says, the processes of justice for the primitive methods of trial by combat. It would outlaw the sitdown strike, require a majority vote for picketing, designate secondary boycotts as unfair practices, and forbid coercion from any source. It would insure collective bargaining and the rights of employés to self-organization and to bargaining representatives of their own choosing.

There seems to be nothing in the bill that asks for special consideration for its proponents. It is designed to place all citizens on an equal basis, equally entitled to the privileges of citizenship and the protection of the state.

The farmers may have to accept less than they ask, but as long as their demands are based on the general good rather than for special exemptions they may expect the support of the great majority of citizens.

Editorial of the Day

A BLUE MOON.

[Washington Evening Star.]

Everybody has heard of a blue moon, but Washingtonians last evening between 5 and 6 o'clock had an opportunity to see one. The phenomenon is so rare as to give rise to a common expression synonymous with never. Yet it does happen now and again. Crowds of people watching the sky at sunset yesterday could testify to the reality—a pale azure disk against a rosy haze in the southeast, clear and distinct, beautiful to behold.

Some of the bystanders, of course, may have wondered whether they could credit their eyes. Perhaps they remembered the skepticism reflected in Roy and Barlow's "Rede Me and Be Nott Wroth," quoted in the Century dictionary: "Yf they saye the mone is belewe, we must beleve that it is true, admittynge their interpretacion." But the Rev. Dr. E. Cobham Brewer, in his "Historic Note-Book," reports: "In the second week of December, 1883, we had green, purple and blue moons; on the seventh, green; on the tenth, blue. The sunset clouds were also unusually brilliant and deep colored. On Sept. 2, 1883, the sun at Trinidad was blue, and at Panama it was green."

Those men of science who study the heavens or those who chronicle the weather should be able to explain the mystery. Meanwhile the world, rationally agnostic of omens, need not be unduly disturbed. The "regent of the night" is not misbehaving. She follows her accustomed path, still loyal to her lord, the patient sun. Only the mist through which the children of earth gaze up at her troubles their vision. Eventually the picture will clear and the "pearly barge" be bright as burnished silver sailing in the ocean of the hours serenely dark for quiet sleep.

THE CLASS IN "EDUCATION."

We have been given to understand, incorrectly, we hope, that many choice specimens of modern youth pass from grammar into high school without knowing the difference between a noun and a verb, between the present and the past tense, between the active and the passive voice, or anything about the structure of the English language and its elementary terminology. Under this terrific handicap they begin the study of some other language, ancient or modern, and grope like blind worms because they have no notion of the function of words.

And yet Education [note the capital E] is a mighty subject in the colleges and universities of the land, and the clouds of its theories cover the firmament of learning, and its sophists discourse upon the importance of their field in a polysyllabic dialect that overpowers lesser minds. The gist of their utterances appears to be that civilization is progressing by leaps and bounds under their guidance.

"Perhaps," the Linemaster suggested to his informant, "the children learn the rudiments of grammar and literary style in their first semester in high school?"

"O, no, we never have anything like that in English classes."

"Well, then, what do you study in English classes in high school, Miss Teen?"

"Drama and journalism."

"Omigod," groaned the Linemaster.

DREAMERS IN THE SNOW.

In shapes of stars the snow began to fall,
And twilight came. The earth was hushed, but you
Began to speak, your eyes ablaze with all
The dreams you planned and lost. The snow, like dew,
Shone on your hair. Your words became a fire
Flaming on the wind. You bent your head
And looked into my eyes, "Your love will tire
Without perfected dreams to give it strength," you said.

How wrong you were to think that dreams unwon
Could make me love the dreamer less! You tried
To win the world for me, the stars and sun.
"But you are all the world I need," I cried,
My hand outstretched to catch the snow, "and here
Are stars; the Milky Way has none as bright
As these!" You caught my hand and smiled, "My dear,
If you see loveliness that others slight
In simple things like snow and me, then hold
My heart, and may the gods forgive." We kissed,
And all the frosty wind that blew was cold
No more, and all the starry flakes were turned to mist.

(The Linemaster regrets that the name of the author of these verses appears to have been lost in the clutter around his desk. Credit will be given after this good poet voices his or her just complaint. Our only clew at present is a memorandum which suggests that the signature was "Ann Adair.")

Only ten more days until Ground Hog day.

Confessions of a Winter Sport.

We have just returned from a winter sports trip up in the deep snow country around Ishpeming, Mich., where the good housewives go shopping on skis and storks deliver babies on snowshoes. These, apparently, are tennis rackets whose pituitary glands functioned improperly during youth, causing the rackets to grow to an enormous size.

All is serene while snowshoeing if you do not walk the pigeon toe or click the heels, as our French guide would say. If you do, then you find yourself suddenly sitting on your face; and if you think it's impossible to sit on your face, just put on a pair of snowshoes and stumble into an uncharted, snow filled hole as we did.

We were on the Blue Trail. All trails are marked—red, yellow, and blue—a band of bright paint encircling a tree or post. We chose blue since it matches our eyes. When we reached a ravine we saw some mothers watching their babies rehersing for the coming ski meet. We edged to the lip of the ravine for a better view, and stepped on what we thought was the snowy bosom of a log. The next instant we had the uncanny experience of looking into our rear pants pockets. We had plunged into a camouflaged pit and were entirely surrounded by snowshoes.

O, dear Linemaster, you will never know the stark terror, the poignant grief we suffered, and the storm and tempest that raged in that hole while we strove to get our seat off our face, our neck out of a snowshoe and to figure out from whence all the arms, legs, and snowshoes had suddenly come. Several Chicago folks on the trail behind us became panicky as they neared the spot, and hurried away, reporting to the ski master that two bears were in combat and had devastated the trail.

To make a long struggle short, it required thirty-five minutes to extricate ourselves from snow, suspenders, pants pockets, and snowshoes. A round trip on the Blue Trail is six miles. On our return to the ski lodge our pedometer showed fifteen miles. We had traveled nine miles in the hole.

How to Measure a Tree.

Roberts Mann, superintendent of maintenance of the Cook county forest preserve district, hopes that entries in this column's Big Tree contest will observe the rules for measuring circumference. Such measurements should be taken B. H., which means breast high. And any one caught assigning a tree measuring job to a midget whose breastbone is only two feet from the ground will be disqualified, adds the Linemaster.

The Gentleman at the Adjacent Desk says that he is starting off on a winter cruise which will carry him all the way to Egypt. The lucky stiff! He's the travel editor, hence this swank. SEARCH FOR INFECTION IN SCIATICA.

THE sciatic nerve—the largest in the body—is frequently the source of much annoyance. The ensuing malady—termed "sciatica"—implies "pain in the hip bone." While the difficulty may appear to lie in the muscles, nevertheless it follows the course of the nerve fibers down the back of the leg.

As this bundle of "wires" emerges from the spinal cord it is subject to many types of pressure. Deformities due to injury or disease, disorders of the pelvic bones themselves, or tumors which exert a constant trauma may be at fault. Tuberculosis must always be considered, particularly if combined with a lesion in the spine; or an abscess may be present in the muscles attached to the pelvis. Again, a shift of the spine [curvature] to one side or the other is always a possibility and this—as well as other distortions—may be identified by means of an X-ray film. Now and then long continued compression from sitting—especially on a hard, cold surface—may be responsible.

But none of these causes is associated with the topic under discussion although the symptoms may be similar. They must be eliminated, however, if an accurate evaluation of the nature of the complaint is to be made.

Neuralgia, or inflammation of the nerve somewhere along its pathway, is thought to lie at the root of the trouble. In some cases the seizure comes on suddenly with a sharp stab in the buttocks, which travels to the heel. Occasionally, however, the onset is slow, the discomfort becoming more and more acute with each succeeding day. If there has occurred a preceding siege of lumbago this seems to predispose to certain changes in the muscles of the lower back, even affecting the covering of the nerve. Instinctively the patient tries to save the affected side and may produce an actual bend of the spine to relieve the tension on the muscles which are practically in a state of spasm. As days pass without amelioration the victim becomes worn out with suffering and lack of sleep and he may develop a sizable amount of mental irritability.

As an aid in diagnosis the physician can detect spots of tenderness when the parts are stretched. A simple test is to extend the leg, then—using the knee as a hinge—attempt to touch the back of the thigh with the heel. If severe pain results the sign is positive for sciatica. Again, if the patient sits on a chair and leans forward, sharp pressure on the space beneath the knee will elicit soreness if the nerve is involved. Care must be taken to rule out arthritis about the hip joint, and ordinarily these movements will do so.

In lumbago, the symptoms point clearly as a rule to the true condition as the illness may be experienced while one is walking on the street or about the yard. The agony may be so excruciating that an ambulance will be needed to convey the individual to his home. More often than not the distress is felt on one side of the spine. It is always wise, however, to take an X-ray picture to make sure that no bone infection or growth is guilty.

The removal of nests of infection is essential and many patients, after weeks of rest in bed, will fail to improve because a pus pocket somewhere is discharging toxins into the blood constantly. Most persons afflicted with sciatica or lumbago are found to be anemic, and prompt measures must be taken to bring the hemoglobin back to normal. Sometimes a culture of the throat or of the nasal passages will disclose the existence of streptococci and the clearing out of these organisms will bring about prompt recovery. Bad teeth or diseased tonsils may be discovered and, as soon as the fever subsides—if temperature has been an accompaniment—it is well to have these structures removed.

We must regard heat, rest, and sedative drugs as our chief remedies until it becomes possible to locate the seat of the trouble. Because serious muscle wasting and some crippling may be an aftermath, the whole matter must be viewed with at least mild concern.

FEAR OF FALLING.

Worried writes: I am 49 years old, in good health, and lead a hygienic life. I am troubled with a form of nervousness that is very embarrassing. When I go to the movies I must have a seat on the ground floor. Should I be obliged to sit in the balcony I have the feeling that I am going to fall. I then become dizzy and develop a headache. The same sensations appear whenever I descend a flight of stairs. Should I consult a physician and, if so, what specialty?

REPLY.

The fear of falling is common. The sensation is similar to that which comes to many on looking down from the roof of a high building. Sometimes the eyesight is at fault because of muscle imbalance. In other instances, trouble with the circulation affects the balancing machinery of the inner ears. If the disturbance is purely psychic—with no organic basis—developing poise will help. Send a stamped addressed envelope for a list of reference books on this topic, many of which can be obtained from your public library.

BALANCED DIET WILL HELP.

Mrs. M. writes: Is a special diet advisable for a man of 60 whose blood pressure is only 120?

REPLY.

A well balanced diet, including plenty of red meats [steak, liver, etc.] is advised Search should be made for the cause and associated factors. These include chronic infections, secondary anemias, lowered hemoglobin, and general loss of tone of the body. In most cases it can be relieved.

SPOTS ON NAILS.

T. Y. writes: What is the cause of many white spots on the finger nails?

REPLY.

Air bubbles, nutritional disturbances, and infections are among the causes. They are of no significance except as a record of some past incident.

FROM ACROSS THE SEA

BY KIMPEI SHEBA.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO—Geisha girls, those gaily attired Japanese dancing and singing entertainers whose pictures are seen in travel magazines, misrepresent their country to the world. This is the decree of government officials who have ordered that pictures of these lovely girls be given less display in travel bulletins and other propaganda literature.

According to Shigeru Miyatake, editor of Travel in Japan, a magazine issued by the board of tourist industries, geisha girls are among the favorite topics of prospective travelers to the far east. There is always a big demand for copies of his magazine containing large numbers of smiling girls.

That is what the government does not like, he explained. The geisha girls attract entirely too much attention. They have become symbolic of Japan. This is not right, in the judgment of the officials, who maintain that geisha girls do not truly represent Japan, especially the Japan of today which is a land in the midst of a holy war.

So the officials have decreed that geisha girls be relegated to unimportant parts in travel propaganda or even removed entirely. In their places paintings by noted artists, pictures of shrines, stars of the traditional stage, and other things with some cultural background will be featured hereafter.

The latest issue of Travel in Japan contains not a single photograph of a geisha, not even in the advertisments. The featured illustrations are of historic shrines, famous swordsmiths, autumn harvests, and the brewing of sake, a sweet rice wine.

The board of tourist industries has increased its 1939 budget for overseas propaganda, mainly in the United States, from the present $150,000 to $2,000,000. This was decided at a conference of high officials of the railway department of which the board is a part.

The plan approved at the conference includes:

1. Introducing Japan of today to the world by inviting well known persons in the field of art and learning to see the country. An appropriation of $600,000 has been set aside for this purpose.

2. New offices of the board to be established in Chicago, Berlin, London, Manila, and Shanghai.

3. Distribution of cultural motion pictures.

4. Centering propaganda work in the United States.

One problem which came in for serious discussion was the strict surveillance of foreign visitors by the police. It was held that this practice is discouraging visitors from coming to Japan. Effort will be made to persuade the police to relax their vigilance.

The officials were unanimous in agreeing that false propaganda, such as enticing visitors by playing up the charms of geisha girls, be stopped. They are convinced that truth is, in the long run, the wisest policy.

DIVORCE.

Chicago, Jan. 19.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—In May, 1936, my husband and I separated. In August of the same year he got a divorce. But there were no divorce papers served on me, although I was in the same town and talked to him during this time.

1. He put a piece in the paper to the effect that I was out of the state and my address not known.

2. At the same time he sent the sheriff to my mother with papers to be served on me.

3. I did not know when the hearing was to be, so was not present.

I want to know whether by not having signed any papers of any kind [4] can this divorce be considered legal?

C. H.

1. We would infer from this that the publication was based on a deliberately false affidavit and this would mean that the divorce itself would be invalid.

2. You do not make clear at this point whether a summons was actually served in this way. We suggest that you look up the record of the court proceeding and see what return the sheriff made.

3. After a party has been served with a summons it is up to him to follow the proceedings so as to be present at the time of the trial.

4. The mere fact that you have not signed papers would not be material as to the validity of the divorce, but see preceding answers. If you wish to be sure you should have an attorney examine the court files.

RIGHT TO ESTATE.

Wheaton, Ill., Jan. 20.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—In 1933 my mother's stepfather died, leaving no will. His estate was divided among his four children, who gave nothing to mother, who, all during her girlhood had acted as nursemaid and hired girl to the family. At this late date we have been informed that there is a law in Michigan, where the stepfather lived and died, providing that one-fifth of an estate is to be given to stepchildren of the deceased. Could you enlighten us on this point? If such is the case, is it not too late now to do anything about it? The real estate that he left has been bought up by one of his daughters, and as far as we know all settlements have been made.

A. G.

The stepchildren would not themselves be heirs of their stepfather, but their mother would inherit one-third and on her death her children would divide this share. We advise you to employ an attorney.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

TO HANDLE ESTATE.

Chicago, Jan. 21.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—A mother died, leaving a will in which her six children were named as heirs. Upon investigation it has been found that the person [1] named administrator died. There are some bonds and property left by the deceased.

2. Is it necessary to have a lawyer?

3. How is another administrator appointed?

4. In a word, I would like to know what procedure is necessary.

5. If a member of the family is appointed administrator, what is the usual or correct salary he is to receive for services rendered?

C. H.

1. The personal representative named in a will is called an executor rather than an administrator.

2. Ordinarily it is advisable to employ an attorney for probate proceedings. You are in a better position than we are to decide whether you have exceptional experience and resourcefulness.

3. The substitute appointed by the court where the one named is not available is called "administrator with the will annexed."

4. See preceding answers.

5. The Illinois statute says not over 6 per cent of the personal property.

OPPRESSION IN "ULSTER."

Chicago, Jan. 18.—The statement "Ulster opposes union" of Ireland, north and south, contained in a news dispatch from England, is the reverse of the fact. The northeast corner of Ulster—counties Antrim and Down—oppose union, but the other seven Ulster counties are now, as always, in favor of union with the rest of the country.

Proponents of partition of the country constantly refer to northern Ireland as "Ulster," and your correspondents follow suit, but northern Ireland embraces but six of Ulster's nine counties.

Three counties were severed from the northern province by Lloyd George in order to insure complete control of the northeast to Craigavon's cohorts. Until the mutilation of Ulster a clear majority of her elected representatives were Irish Nationalists.

In view of the manner in which is featured the recent bombings—presumably to focus attention upon the almost unbelievable conditions under which the Nationalists of the north exist—it is strange indeed that a series of bombings of Catholic churches and recreation halls in Belfast and neighborhood have been completely ignored by Chicago newspapers. Why the discrimination?

It may be asked, too, why no mention has been made by local papers of the raids, roundups, searches without warant, detentions and deportations, which are constantly being carried out by the government of northern Ireland? Is not the fact that the Nationalists of the north are denied that fundamental right of citizenship—fair representation—an interesting item of news? As an instance of the gerrymander which has so resulted may be cited Derry City, where the majority of 27,062 have but eight members of the city council, while the minority of 18,097 have twelve. Nationalist representation, one for every 3,750; Unionists, one for every 1,500!

THE NAZIS DEFENDED.

Chicago, Jan. 13.—Please why is it made so hard for us American citizens of German birth to be loyal to this United States when we read day after day, year after year, nothing but malicious lying and hateful articles on the Nazis [formerly Germany]? Why all the excitement about the Jews but never about Russia that killed millions of its best people? In Russia church and religion are destroyed. But in Germany not a single Catholic or Protestant church is closed.

Germany under Hitler is going ahead and nothing is stopping him. Remember the mass of the German people are satisfied and happy. They will not go back to the golden times of the republic. Germany is a poor country and cannot afford to be ruled and robbed by selfish officials as we find them in the so-called democracies.

SUMMARY JUSTICE.

Chicago, Jan. 18.—Here's my plan to prevent automobile accidents:

Instead of giving motorists an arrest slip for minor trafic violations policemen should be empowered to curb the car [subject and with due respect to passing trafic] and deflate one or two tires, according to the seriousness of the offense. Then have the driver inflate the tires with his hand pump.

This is laborious work and, once burned twice shy, the driver would be more careful in the future.

BALTIC SCENES.

Chicago, Jan. 17.—I wish to express my elation over seeing Donald Day's picture of an elk at the shore near Memel, Lithuania, which appeared in last Sunday's paper. Our business deals principally with imports from Lithuania and we, and, I am sure, many others would like to see more pictures and learn more about this seldom publicized nation.

J. BREMER.

IF HE HAD HIS WAY.

Chicago, Jan. 18.—If I had my way no garbage would be collected and no streets cleaned in sections of the city outside the blighted areas. People living in the nicer neighborhoods are the better educated, more refined and enlightened citizens with higher incomes. Their homes should be outfitted with garbage disposal equipment. The streets would naturally be free from filth due to the cleanly habits of our best people.

On the other hand, the residents of blighted areas deserve more consideration. For them garbage collections should be made daily and the streets and alleys whitewinged as frequently. The winds would then have less filth to carry to the better places. These B. A. [blighted area] people go to the other neighborhoods daily to clean, scrub, and scour, tend the babies and dogs and do all the work that might soil or spoil milady's hands or disposition.

The scheme looks like a common sense arrangement for keeping our streets and homes free from germs. It is also a way of applying the good neighbor policy locally.

DAVID FRISCH.

WOMAN'S PLACE.

Chicago, Jan. 12.—We find today many married women employed in various positions, taking jobs away from single women or men who have families to support. Years back, when a man and a woman intended to marry, they secured a place to live and furnished that place according to their means as a home. The wife took care only of that home. In those days a man whose wife had to do washing to support herself and children was regarded as a bum, a good-for-nothing, and that also applies today.

No self-respecting man will allow his wife to work outside his home, whether it is back of the washboard or in office or shop. The proper place for a married woman is in her home, provided by her husband, and if she takes the proper care of that home she is doing her share. A woman opposed to home life and the rearing of children [which marriage is intended for] has no vocation for marriage and should remain in the single state.

It is time that employers recognize this unnatural condition and refuse to employ married women.

A BREAKER OF FRIENDSHIPS.

Chicago, Jan. 19.—Is the radio separating us from our friends? Are we letting it take all of our spare time? Did you ever happen in to call when a family was listening to their favorite radio program and see the disappointed look on their faces? You were just about as welcome as the smallpox. This is deplorable. We all enjoy our radios; in fact, they are an absolute necessity, but let's not neglect our friends. We had them first and they are hard to get. We can buy a radio, but we have to make our friends.

Mrs. Sidley, the daughter of the late Col. William Horlick, founder of the malted milk company that bears his name, died in July, 1938, in Toronto, Ont., at the home of W. Perkins Bull, king's counselor. She had been a guest there eighteen months.

Leaves Third to Bull.

She left one-third of her estate, valued all the way from 3 to 10 million dollars, to Bull. He shares equally with the Horlick heiress' son, William Horlick Sidley, 27 years old, of this city. This son is contesting the will. The hearing started early last week in Racine county's modernistic courthouse, overlooking Lake Michigan.

Despite charges of coercion on the part of Bull, undue influence and unconventional doings that preceded Mrs. Sidley's divorce in 1931 from her husband, Dr. John Streeter Sidley, Racine as a whole, remained away from the courthouse. This was a surprise to County Judge J. Allan Simpson, who had called for special police to handle the expected crowds.

Crowds Finally Come.

The crowds didn't come until the announcement that Mrs. Harrison, who was Mrs. Sidley's maid and companion for fourteen years, would be the principal witness for young Sidley. On Thursday and Friday the corridors outside the court were filled with people. They understood at last that the things that have gone on for years in two of the Horlick family mansions were about to be told.

These mansions are "The Residence," where William Horlick Jr. makes his home, and "The Oaks," where Dr. Sidley lived with the Horlick heiress in apparent happiness before the bearded Bull made his appearance. And Mrs. Harrison told reluctantly of Dr. Sidley's drinking and of Bull's domination of the Oaks household when he arrived there in 1927 as a guest of William Horlick Jr., whom he had met on a trip to England.

Respected by Townspeople.

The Horlicks, Racine people will tell you, control about half the town. And they have had the respect of the people for many years. The townsfolk are proud of the family. They still tell pridefully of how old Col. Horlick paid for a plane that was taken by Admiral Richard E. Byrd on his first antarctic expedition in 1931. On that occasion, Byrd invited the colonel and Mrs. Sidley to New York to look over his boats. Bull went along also and was photographed with the heiress, the admiral, and the colonel aboard the Jacob Ruppert of Byrd's fleet.

There are other incidents in the life of the first family that Racine people are proud of. They mention them to the casual stranger. They deny that the present trial is really a fight between Mrs. Sidley's brothers, Alexander J. and William Jr.—A. J. is backing young Sidley; the other uncle, who is an executor of the will, is opposing him.

When it was understood that this was not to be just a dry probate case, that the life that went on behind the doors of "The Residence" and "The Oaks" was to be revealed pretty fully, the crowds came to the trial. Only 200 at a time, however, can be accommodated. Others have to hear about it from those who attend or have to read about it in the papers.

Police said that Barzyk sped away in 43d street, with a witness, Robert Knox, 21, of 5135 South Ashland avenue, in pursuit. Knox told police later, they said, that Barzyk drove 50 miles an hour. Just west of Damen avenue, Barzyk's car swerved into a post. Salmer was thrown out and killed instantly. Barzyk suffered minor injuries. He was arrested after Knox's story was learned. Investment Banker's Son Dies in East.

Donald L. Stern, young son of Mr. and Mrs. Laurence F. Stern, 981 Sheridan road, Glencoe, died of pneumonia last night in the Mary Hitchcock hospital in Hanover, N. H. His death occurred an hour after a dramatic mercy mission had been completed through New England snow storms to get pneumonia serum to him.

Stern, 20 years old and a freshman at Dartmouth college in Hanover, was stricken with pneumonia last week. His father, president of the Chicago investment securities company bearing his name, flew to his side last Friday.

Specialist Flies to Youth.

His mother and a sister, Mrs. Robert Straus, arrived by train Saturday. Another sister, Susan, remained in Chicago. Yesterday, when young Stern's condition grew worse, Dr. Leon Bloch, a Chicago specialist, was summoned by plane. He left at once.

A call was sent to New York for the serum. An American Airlines plane sped it to Boston. Bad weather, however, grounded the plane that was to take the serum from Boston to Hanover.

Battle Snow Storms in Car.

Thomas Kelly, airlines chauffeur, volunteered to deliver the serum by car. Escorted by Massachusetts police and later by New Hampshire police, Kelly drove through one snow squall after another over perilous roads.

Kelly reached the Hitchcock hospital with the serum at 6 p. m., five hours after it had first left the Newark airport. At 7 p. m. young Stern died.

PRESIDENT SEEKS 850 MILLIONS TO PROMOTE HEALTH

Washington, D. C., Jan. 22.—(AP)—President Roosevelt is expected to urge congress in a special message tomorrow to enact legislation for a huge, long range health improvement program.

The health program, which would entail expenditures up to 850 million dollars annually from state and federal funds by 1949, has been a controversial issue since it was recommended to Mr. Roosevelt last July by his special interdepartmental committee on health and welfare.

It will go to a congress already showing signs of economy-mindedness, and embroiled at present in a dispute over how much should be appropriated to run WPA for the next five months.

Funds would be allotted to states and communities under restrictions requiring that they do their part in health promotion.

BAR JAP SHAVING BRUSHES AFTER ANTHRAX DEATH

Washington, D. C., Jan. 22.—(AP)—Dr. Thomas Parran, surgeon general of the public health service, said tonight he had requested "in effect an embargo on all Japanese-made shaving brushes" as a result of a death in North Dakota from anthrax traced to infection from one.

Dr. Parran said collectors of customs at all ports of entry had been asked to bar such brushes until adequate samples had been tested at the National Institute of Health.

Tests of several samples from a large shipment of shaving brushes made in Japan disclosed, the surgeon general said, that "not only were they not sterilized against anthrax but were not sterilized at all."

Paderewski, 78, Will Start Tour of U. S. Feb. 26

BY EDWARD BARRY.

Ignace Jan Paderewski, 78 years old, world renowned Polish pianist and at one time the premier of Poland, will emerge from retirement and come to the United States next month for his twentieth American tour. This was announced yesterday by the National Broadcasting company, which is sponsoring the visit. His first appearance will be before the NBC microphone in New York on Feb. 26. He is to remain in this country for at least ten weeks and play in some twenty of the larger cities.

Ignace Jan Paderewski.

Paderewski's fame began in 1887 when he made a hugely successful appearance in Vienna. His first American tour took place in 1891-'92, his nineteenth in 1933. He has played nine times with the Chicago Symphony orchestra.

Albert Goldberg directed yesterday's Great Northern theater concert of the Illinois Symphony orchestra, presenting the "Manfred" symphony of Tschaikowsky in a manner which made some of its old fashioned pages seem alive and beautiful. He coaxed a nice tone out of the orchestra in the Pastorale, and filled the finale [a sort of Satanic revel] with gentle nineteenth century excitement.

Soloist of the afternoon was Sigfred Matson, pianist, who played the Fourth Saint-Saëns concerto in an agile and tonally acceptable way. That the piece did not come over the footlights with any heart storming urgency is mostly the fault of Mr. Saint-Saëns. However, the soloist could put a little more communicative fire into his playing.

In the Auditorium Recital hall the Music Study Club of Chicago presented Edward Gould Hill, pianist. In pieces by Rameau, Friedman, and Schubert, he revealed a fine sense of line, a restrained beauty of tone, and a sure knowledge of where the important notes of a phrase lie.

In the evening Joseph Novak sang under the auspices of the American-Jugoslav Fine Arts society of Chicago. Miscellaneous songs and operatic airs were marred by a style which, among other faults, distrusts the simple legato phrase. Edmund H. Attwood played competent accompaniments, but came to grief in a solo performance [the first movement of Beethoven's "Pathetique" sonata] because of his erratic tempi and his difficulties of articulation in rapid passages.

ONE NUMBER MARS RECITAL

BY CECIL SMITH.

Frank Bishop, American pianist who introduced himself to Chicago a fortnight ago as assisting artist with the Civic orchestra, returned to Orchestra hall yesterday afternoon for his first solo recital. The mainstays of his program were Beethoven's sonata, opus 111, and Schumann's "Carnaval." These he surrounded with shorter works by J. F. K. Fischer, Bach, and Gluck from the eighteenth century and by Fauré, Albeniz, and Liszt from more recent times.

It is no mean accomplishment for a pianist to play a wholly agreeable recital. This Mr. Bishop neatly succeeds in doing. His tone, especially in its more lyric aspects, remains pleasantly songful at all times. A general graciousness invests the whole manner of his playing.

Yet so imposing a work as the Beethoven sonata was wholly beyond his scope. His attitude toward it did not come through in his playing, if indeed it could be said that he had an attitude toward it. In his placid suavity there was no hint that he realized either the bigness or the subtlety of one of Beethoven's most elusive piano compositions. There was never any drive, for the pianist revealed no large overview of the music —no sense of a musical problem to be solved or of an emotional consummation to be reached.

At the Beaux Arts salon in the Medinah club yesterday afternoon Paul Kahn, young violinist of the Chicago Symphony orchestra, and Dorothy Foster, pianist, played the Franck sonata. On several past occasions Mr. Kahn has shown himself to be an estimable artist. Perhaps he felt hampered yesterday by Miss Foster's pedestrian collaboration. At any rate, his playing did not begin to take on either freedom or fire until the piece was nearly over.

Ila May Handel, soprano, shared the program. A high lyric voice that should be attractive is harmed by an erratic vocal method. Début nervousness also seemed to stand in the way of the singer's success, and to cause her to commit many barbarisms of style.

The archaic tone of recorders and flugel horns mingled with the familiar sound of strings at the University of Chicago last night, in the second concert by the university's newly formed Collegium Musicum. This group, conducted by Siegmund Levarie of the university music faculty, is devoted chiefly to pre-Bach music. Last night's program covered a span of three centuries, from 1452 to works by Bach and Handel. Henrietta Chase, soprano of the Chicago City Opera company, was a warm voiced assisting artist.

Notes on Red Heads.

Martin Kidder, red haired young Louisville advertising executive who has been organizing his National Red Heads' club at the Stevens, has accumulated some facts about redheads: They think on their feet; they usually are either egoists or have inferiority complexes [due to the teasing they get in their childhood]; there are nineteen shades of red hair; 97 per cent of the redheads have curly or wavy locks, and a surprising number have brown eyes contrary to the popular conception. The ages of the redheads who attended Mr. Kidder's meeting at the Stevens ranged from 10 to 70. The 70 year old redhead was a woman.

Nauvoo Guide Book.

The booklet on Nauvoo, Ill., in the American Guide series, compiled and written by the Federal Writers' Project, is out. Strange things are told in the booklet. . . . How a great storm came out of the west and leveled the walls of Joseph Smith's Mormon temple when the Icarians began to rebuild it in 1850, then died away to a whisper—at the same hour of the day and the same day of the month that Smith had been murdered in the Carthage jail.

Strange things happened while the booklet was in preparation, too. Text Author James Phelan's galley proofs mysteriously disappeared. Then when the covers were printed the ink refused to dry and they all had to be reprinted. Finally, all the windows in the printing shop fell out.

Waitress' Wit.

A tall blonde waitress at the Hotel Leland in Springfield, who formerly was a circus bareback rider, is a familiar figure to politicians and newspaper men. When one of them introduced a fellow newspaper man by the same name, but who is no relation, to her as his brother when she served them, she had a retort:

"Well, you look a little alike—about the eyes," she said. "Both bloodshot."

A man emerging from the elevated stairway at Grand and Franklin, hatless, bald, wearing a beaver coat, hoisting an umbrella in the snow. . . . Cornelia Otis Skinner arriving at the Ambassador for her Candida opening tonight. . . . A woman introduced to a Mrs. Kerr and in the next breath calling her Mrs. Barker. Association of ideas? Many Chicago Folk Cruising South America

BY JUDITH CASS.

NUMEROUS Chicagoans have departed or soon will depart for cruises to South American ports. Many others are taking the shorter trips to the Caribbean this season.

When the Bremen starts its two months' trip around the neighboring continent next month Mr. and Mrs. Sterling Morton will be on board.

Just as the Mortons sail, their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest A. Hamill II., will be returning from a shorter cruise to the West Indies. The Hamills are cruising in the Niew Amsterdam on their first holiday in two years. The Mortons are building a new home in Lake Forest, but they have not gone beyond the blueprint stage.

Five North Shore Couples on Cruise of 35 Days.

Returning travelers remember and speak with pleasure of Trinidad, Curacao, the Spanish Main, the Brazil coast, and hundreds of other localities. A north shore group that is becoming especially well acquainted with South American sea and river ports is made up of Mr. and Mrs. Herrick Hammond, the Ayres Boals, the Frederick Coburns, the Paul Chaces, and the Frank M. Judsons.

They sailed from New Orleans recently in a freighter that carries a limited number of passengers. The itinerary depends somewhat on the size and handling of the cargo, so the voyagers undoubtedly will see many out of the way places on their thirty-five day cruise.

The Louis C. Sudlers are in the West Indies. They will celebrate their 10th wedding anniversary on Feb. 2, probably in Jamaica. Mrs. George Mason and her daughter, Mrs. Mason Houston, of the Knickerbocker, are on a three months' cruise around South America.

Merritt H. Dements Sail Friday for Cruise.

The Merritt H. Dements are sailing from New York on Friday in the Kungsholm for a cruise to the West Indies and South America. During their absence their daughter and son-in-law, the John W. Holloways, will occupy the Dement home in Kenilworth. Mr. Holloway's mother, Mrs. Harry C. Holloway, and her daughter, Mrs. Edward T. Herndon of New York, are holidaying in Miami Beach.

Mrs. Charles R. Jacobs and Mrs. George T. French are sailing from New Orleans in the Rotterdam on Saturday. They will cruise in the West Indies.

Mr. and Mrs. William Waller are hoping to leave Feb. 1 for their Palm Beach home, to spend the rest of the season. Their daughter, Miss Virginia Waller, and Mrs. Frank Pierce Jr. motored south together last week. Miss Waller's cousin, Mrs. Henry L. McIntyre, went south by train with her and Mrs. Pierce's little boys.

Mrs. McIntyre's mother will join the Wallers about Feb. 15. Thatcher Waller does not have a spring vacation at the University of Virginia, so neither he nor William Waller III., who is studying aviation with the United States army, will go to Palm Beach this year. Lucia Waller, who attends Garrison Forest near Baltimore, will spend her Easter holiday in Chicago, for her parents will have returned here by April 1.

Mrs. Augustus W. Eddy Goes South Next Month.

Mrs. Augustus W. Eddy is leaving shortly after Feb. 1 for two months in the south. She will visit her father, Lansing B. Warner, in Pinehurst, and her younger son, Bodie, who is at school in Aiken. Then she will go on farther south for the rest of her vacation.

Mrs. Patrick A. Valentine has left for Florida, unaccompanied, however, by her granddaughter, Miss Betty Armour, and Miss Kay Goodman, who had planned to go south with her. Mrs. Valentine will return to Chicago about March 15.

Mrs. Frank P. Graves and her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Graves, are holidaying in Palm Beach until Feb. 1. They are staying at the Brazilian Court.

Robert A. Gardners Back from South Tomorrow.

Director of Two Benefits

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Mrs. Frank H. Woods Jr. is a busy young woman these days, for she is in charge of two benefits to be given soon. She is president of the Alumnae association of the Girls' Latin school, which is sponsoring a lecture next Wednesday night for the benefit of the school library fund. Robert P. Tristram Coffin will be the lecturer. Mrs. Woods is chairman of the committee that has planned a dinner-dance to benefit Emerson House for next Saturday night. The party will be given at the Harvey restaurant in South Michigan avenue.

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

All over town there are marvelous bargains in reducing courses. If you're interested in reducing now is the time to get going on your program. It's a little cheaper than it is in the spring and the fall. And in winter the prospect of taking regular exercise is a bit more attractive, even to the laziest, than it is in milder weather.

What's more, if you start now you'll be all set for the spring suit. Remember that on a safe, sane, and efficient program you can easily lose ten pounds a month. And that, by the way, is just about the limit you should lose. Beware of trick methods, of drugs or diets that promise a quicker loss!

You'll find, if you're burdened with excess weight, that one of the principal rewards of a good reducing program will be improved health and spirits. The renewed pep will be as much of a satisfaction to you as the remodeled silhouette.

Have a physical examination first. If your doctor will outline your diet [and more and more physicians are becoming receptive to the idea of doing this] you're really in luck. In any case the examination will determine whether there is an organic cause for your obesity. Nine times out of ten there isn't—but it's always smart to make sure.

After that let your pocketbook and your common sense be your guide. Combine exercise and massage for the best results, with special emphasis on supervised exercise. Massage seems the easier way, because some one else does all the work, but exercise will insure better muscle tone and lasting improvement. The two together are the ideal combination.

There's no disgrace to gaining weight; the disgrace and the damage are in accepting the too-high figure and just getting complacent about it.

Good Morning!

And still those Hardys continue to "grow on you."

It's a plume in the beret of everybody connected with the series that these wholesome annals of a middle class American family have such strong and increasing appeal.

"Out West with the Hardys" is as interesting, if not more so, than episodes that have gone before. It transports the family to breezy new environment and introduces characters laughable and loveable.

The desire of an old friend, who thinks he's about to lose his ranch, for Judge Hardy's astute advice, results in a household hegira to God's country. . . .

Left behind are Marian's boy friend, Dennis, with whom she's quarreled, and Andy's Polly, who's as mad as a little red hen at that young gentleman for reasons the picture shall show you.

Much humor is injected into the action by Marian's temporary infatuation for the Northcote ranch foreman, a handsome young widower with a small, capable, and very deep daughter who doesn't want a stepmamma, and Andy's encounters with this maiden—who teaches him a lot of things he's needed to know.

Days on the ranch are happy, exciting, disappointing—and sad. . . . But the Hardys come through in great shape, keeping you rooting for them collectively and singly.

The last scenes show them at home again. Knots legal and romantic have been straightened out and the folks—presumably—are all set for their next adventure, which we shall await with joyous anticipation.

Acting by the familiar and loved players portraying the Hardys is aces —as always. Virginia Weidler steals the show now and then with her quiet, cerebral depiction of a most deceptively innocent appearing young lady. All other characterizations please.

The film is just—long—enough!

See you tomorrow.

A Stranger in the Dark

By Frank R. Adams

(Copyright: 1939: By Frank R. Adams.)

SYNOPSIS.

The hero, pursued by a detective, is stopped in a Chicago railway depot by a young man, apparently dying, who gives him his wallet and baggage check to get him his medicine. He gets the sick man's bag, then, seeing the man being carried away on a stretcher, he uses the man's ticket, is on his way to Clovis, N. M., as John Bowman—an innocent fugitive, having taken the blame for missing bank funds to save his father. Before reaching Clovis he confesses his identity to Sheriff Tom Johnson, who boards the train to welcome Joh Bowman, whose father, Pete Bowman, is dying and longs to see the son separated by divorce from him since babyhood. The sheriff persuades him to take on the rôle. John's sister, Mary, and her fiancé, Charles Ferdinand, manager of her father's ranch, meet him in Amarillo and fly him to the ranch in Charles' plane. Mrs. Lodge, wife of Pete's physician and guest, is with them. Our hero falls instantly in love with Mary and dislikes Charles, a handsome show-off, who is the pet of Pete's sister, Matilda, who had loved Charles father. The hero meets paralyzed old Pete Bowman, kept a virtual prisoner by Matilda. Pete asks him to stay and help Mary, and gives him his guns.

INSTALMENT XIII.

TYRANNY.

On Charles' left was a vacant chair to which Mrs. Lodge came late, hurrying a little.

"Don't hold a place for Dr. Lodge. He is not feeling well." She said it with a touch of pathos as if to imply that his illness was of an alcoholic nature. "I had a waitress take a tray to him in our bungalow."

She looked even better in an evening gown than she had earlier in sports clothes and a bathing suit.

There was another man next to her whose name was Alfred Corbin, a young musician who was to play for the wedding the next day, although no one said on what, and on his left Josephine Dangerfield. That, I noted with satisfaction, made her far enough from me so that any conversation we wished to exchange would have to be shouted. No chance for veiled threats from that quarter, not until dinner was over, anyway. She smiled at me pleasantly. Apparently Josephine was satisfied to wait. She could afford to. It was my next move and we both knew it.

There were between forty and fifty guests all told. Half a dozen waitresses served the company. For atmosphere a cow hand, probably radio trained, sang laments and herd songs outside somewhere, accompanying himself on a guitar.

Aunt Matilda indulged herself freely in the joys of eating. She made several remarks to me while waiting for food to be brought on and then paid me no further attention.

What she said was, "I suppose you have some plans of a financial nature for the future."

I didn't know exactly what she meant and said so.

"O, I thought you had been told that when my brother dies, which will be very soon, I fear, the allowance he has made to you, and that woman all these years will cease."

I suspected that by "that woman" she meant the ex-Mrs. Pete Bowman, but I didn't go into that. It didn't matter a continental to me personally where Pete Bowman's money went. I was sorry, however, for the real John, who, I thought, did not look very capable of fighting the world for a living—that is, of course, if he wasn't dead already.

It didn't seem to me like a very amusing subject anyway, so I changed it. I had seen her watching Charles Ferdinand out of the corners of her squinty pig's eyes.

"Charles is a handsome man, isn't he?" I said casually.

She turned toward me with the first light of approval in any glance she had so far bestowed upon me. "I think he is the nearest to perfection of any man who has ever lived."

That took in a good deal of territory and it gave me an insight into the entire situation such as I had not had before. Charles was to this frustrated woman a dream come true. It was more her fault than his that he was as he was. She had set him a pattern fabricated from the wishes of a mind that still dwelt in the land of Prince Charming and he was doing his best to act up to it. I didn't blame him very much. It seemed to be a very profitable sort of a design for living.

I had no compunction about annoying her with pin pricks, however, as our mutual esteem was very low so I said, "He seems very devoted to the lovely Mrs. Lodge."

"She adores him," Aunt Matilda replied calmly. "All women do."

We didn't get any farther. The first course appeared and Aunt Matilda settled down to satisfying the porcine beast that peered out through her little eyes.

At first it seemed strange to me that there should be merriment and feasting even among the family while that granite old man lay fallen and desperately ill in a room under the same roof. But after a little consideration I realized that this was a "guest ranch," almost a hotel, and the family affairs must be masked behind a front of conventional frivolity. Then, too, it was the night before the wedding of the daughter of the house.

It was on that account, I suppose, that champagne was served with the dinner. I do not like champagne myself, so I only tasted it. Mary drank none at all. But Mrs. Lodge was in a reckless mood and kept pace glass for glass with Charles, who seemed to be amused by her flaming indiscretion. She ate very little I noticed.

Mary seemed to care not at all that Charles left her pretty much to me, and I certainly had no complaints on that score.

During dinner we talked mostly about Mary herself. I confess that I guided the conversation in that channel because it seemed safer than to discuss the affairs of the man I was supposed to be.

Thus it was that I learned that Mary had gone away to school during the earlier years of her educational life, but that, during her first year at college, she had been abruptly called home. This had been the doing of Aunt Matilda on the technical grounds that she ought to be near her father, who was then beginning his lingering illness.

From that time on Mary had led a rather lonely life except during the dude season at the ranch. She had not been allowed to see much of her father, whose care had even then been carefully supervised by the self-sacrificing Aunt Matilda. Quite naturally Mary had been thrown a great deal into the society of Charles, who, as manager, lived there the year round except for two or three months in midwinter, when he went to New York, Florida, and sometimes abroad, making contacts with new customers for the ranch. He always came home with lots of interesting experiences to tell about and many of the people he met showed up later as paying guests at the ranch, so he was apparently a good ambassador.

"Didn't he ever bring you a man that you liked yourself—especially, I mean?" I asked it lightly because her recital had seemed singularly lacking in romance.

"Once there was a Princeton boy," Mary said with a slight laugh. "I thought he was very attractive, but Aunt Matilda claimed that several of the chambermaids had reported him for annoying them and she requested him to leave. It didn't seem to me that 'Scan' was like that"—she paused "—but I suppose there are things even modern girls don't entirely understand."

"Do you, by any chance, mean Scanlon Anderson?" I asked. "The nickname is unusual and——"

"Yes, I do. Do you know him?"

I had known him. Only a few months before I'd helped him die in a filthy sheep herder's hut in Spain. I didn't tell her that.

"I knew 'Scan'—yes—and he wasn't like that, Mary. There was a mistake somewhere."

It had been an intentional mistake, too. I knew that also. Even then Mary's marriage to Charles had been planned. I don't suppose that in many years any man save Charles had been allowed to talk privately to Mary even as long as I had. I almost laughed aloud when I thought what a panic there would be if Aunt Matilda knew I was not really Mary's brother.

I was beginning, I believed, to get an inkling of what old Pete Bowman had meant by his laboriously lettered warning, "Help Mary," which still reposed in the middle breast pocket of my coat. He wanted me to save her, I thought, from sinking into the sticky bog which had engulfed himself. How that could be humanly possible he probably had no more idea than I. They were, the two of them, a couple of helpless flies tangled in a web which was daily being woven stronger around them by the fat spider who pretended to be covering them with nice soft silk to keep them warm.

[Copyright: 1939: By The Chicago Tribune.]

We used to give graham crackers to the baby to chew on when he became fussy, or to the youngsters when they came home hungry from school. We still do, sometimes, but we make many of our best desserts from graham crackers, too.

Some of these desserts are quite simple. Melt a marshmallow on a graham cracker, or put two crackers together with icing, chocolate fudge, or whipped cream. Make a refrigerator dessert by stacking graham crackers together with a sweet filling, slicing slantwise to serve, with whipped cream. Here are other ideas:

Graham Date-Nut Torte

[Serves six]

1 cup sugar
3 egg whites, beaten stiff
6 graham crackers, crushed
1 cup chopped walnuts
½ pound chopped, seeded dates
1 teaspoon vanilla

Add sugar gradually to beaten egg whites, continuing to beat until all sugar has been dissolved in the egg white. Combine crushed crackers with nuts, dates and flavoring, and fold into the meringue. Spread in a well buttered pan and bake at 350 degrees for 30 minutes. Break up into small pieces with a fork and serve with whipped cream.

Banana Graham Cracker Dessert

[Serves six]

2 dozen small graham crackers
3 tablespoons butter
3 bananas
2 tablespoons lemon juice
½ cup brown sugar

Spread crackers with butter. Cover entire cracker with thin slices of banana, and sprinkle with lemon juice and brown sugar. Dot with butter and broil until sugar melts and banana browns lightly.

Fruit and Marshmallow Roll

[Serves six]

14 graham crackers, finely crumbled
½ cup chopped dates
8 marshmallows, cut in pieces
½ cup broken nut meats
½ cup heavy cream
1 teaspoon vanilla

Crumble crackers fine and reserve three tablespoons. Combine other ingredients, shape into a roll, roll in the reserved crums, and wrap in wax paper. Chill at least four hours. Slice and serve with whipped cream.

Graham Cracker Sponge Cake

[Nine inch tube pan]

6 egg yolks, beaten until thick
1 cup sifted sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 cup fine, sifted graham cracker crums
1 teaspoon baking powder
1 cup chopped nuts
6 egg whites, beaten until stiff
⅛ teaspoon salt

Beat egg yolks until they are thick and lemon colored. Add sugar gradually, continuing to beat until thoroughly dissolved, and the mixture is very light. Add vanilla. Combine sifted crums and baking powder, and fold thoroughly into the egg mixture. Add nuts. Beat egg whites until stiff, but not dry, with the salt, and fold into the batter. Bake in an ungreased nine inch tube pan, or three small layer pans, at 325 degrees for tube, 350 degrees for layers. Frost with a confectioners' icing and sprinkle with chopped nuts. If layers are baked, fill them with a cream filling and top with frosting.

Select Dress for Activity It Will Meet

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

[Copyright: 1939: By The Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Syndicate, Inc.]

"You tried that new dress on in the store, stood still before the mirror and admired yourself in it, then bought it because you fancied it became you well. But how much of the time you will be wearing that dress will be spent standing still before a mirror in a dressing room? And how can you be sure that the dress that looks so well under those circumstances will look equally well when put through the paces to which your work or social engagements submit your clothes?"

The questions are Pauline Koner's. Miss Koner, being an internationally known dancer, is naturally pretty sensitive to the relationship between clothes and motion. She knows too well the problems that her mother [who has been making all of her stage costumes since she first danced, as a child of ten, with the Fokine ballet] encounters figuring out skirt patterns that will allow for overhead kicks and four-foot leaps, and sleeves in which one can rotate one's arms in all directions. But she's always a little surprised that the rest of us women do not take motion into consideration at all when we buy our street clothes. "Yet we spend at least fifteen of every sixteen waking hours in motion," she's figured.

The only standard by which you can really judge whether a new dress is becoming is to consider it in direct relation to what you plan to do in it. Pauline Koner said. And if you know you're going to have to bend and stretch and climb in it you may just as well go through those motions in the store dressing room and find out beforehand how the dress stands up under them.

Skirts, sleeves, and necklines are the most important things to be considered, the dancer cautions. "A woman whose work keeps her seated most of the day, for example, should avoid straight, narrow skirts that get baggy and 'hike up' when the knees are crossed."

A person who walks a great deal shouldn't wear a straight skirt, either, particularly if she's inclined to move her hips freely when she walks. In that case, a straight skirt gives an ugly pulling sensation, whereas a swinging skirt would give a "lovely plastic movement." Or course, not every one can wear a circular skirt. But if you're not so thin and need narrower lines, Miss Koner suggests you try inverted plaits.

Art Institute Shows Superior Post-War Architecture of U. S.

The great contribution of the United States in architecture after the World war is illustrated by plans and photographs on view until Jan. 29 in the Art institute. This is the first exhibit of its kind in more than twenty years and will be circulated throughout the country.

More than two years' work by committees of the American Institute of Architects was necessary to produce the exhibit. It consists of eighty-two plates showing residences, apartment buildings, hotels, educational, recreational, commercial, industrial and religious buildings.

Among the outstanding examples in the exhibit are Tribune Tower, the Field building, Chicago Daily News building, the Empire State building, New York, and the Kansas City Municipal auditorium.

Young Girls Love Mothers in Whom They Can Confide

BY DORIS BLAKE.

[Copyright: 1939: By The Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Syndicate, Inc.]

Mammas, we would petition you to read the following letter carefully. Indeed, we wish mothers were able to get in touch with more of the confessions that are presented to us in this department by their grown-up girls. We are speaking of mothers who will not recognize that their girls are out of their babyhood.

"I am 17," confides Aline. "I would like very much to have boys and girls up to my house for fun and dancing, like my friends have. But my mother does not believe that a girl of my age should have boy friends. I mean real honest-to-goodness pals, not beaux. I'm not even supposed to talk to boys, or even say 'hello' to them—not even to those who live in the neighborhood.

"My mother seems to think that when the age for marriage arrives all I'll have to do will be to pick a fellow from a dream book or out of the blue somehow and get married.

"I used to love my parent very much, but, I am ashamed to say, my feeling is gradually turning, not to hate, but to something like it. She is just a mother, not a friend or a companion. She tells me what's right and wrong, but never once have I been able to go to her and tell her of my puppy loves, infatuations, or about boys at all.

"I am not in love, but if I were I'd truly be afraid to confide in her about the most wonderful person in the world, who is a Prince Charming and dances divinely. Ten to one, I'd tell my friends, but not her.

"I can easily go on 'sneaks' with fellows, but I don't want to become that common and deceitful. I want to be straightforward with Moms and straightforward with myself. What can be done to destroy the barrier that is growing between my mother and me?"

There you are, mothers. Your girls would like nothing better than to be able to go to you with their confidences, but your forbidding, unsympathetic manner destroys your chance at intimacy.

Can't you recall your own youth? Were your mothers like that? Didn't you wish they were different, like the good-companion mothers of other girls? Or, if you were in luck and had the kind of mother you could talk to, wouldn't you want your girl to know the same blessing?

Brides enjoying their first adventures in housekeeping, and homemakers who have kept the home fires burning for many years, both will like the lines of this modish house dress. It is styled to suit both matronly and youthful figures. Its lines are basically on the princess order. You may have a belt or not, as you wish. The neckline may be created in either notched lapel fashion and V, or it may be high and round and have a curved shirtwaist collar. The sleeves are cut in one with the shoulders, and may be plaited or notched up. Buttons are used down the front, and may be arranged in groups.

No trimming need be used other than the buttons, but if you desire the touch of rickrack braid or binding, by all means have it. Both printed and plain cottons make up well in this pattern, and dark and light shades are equally acceptable.

Style No. 3340 is designed for sizes 16, 18, and 20, and 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, and 48 inches bust measurement. Size 36 requires 3⅞ yards of 39 inch material, with ¼ yard of 39 inch contrasting for the collar, and 2 yards of rickrack braid.

Address orders for Clotilde patterns to Chicago Tribune, P. O. Box 537, Grand Central Station, NEW YORK CITY, inclosing ten cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred—wrap it carefully) for each pattern ordered. IMPORTANT! U. D. C. President O. K.'s Miss Leigh as Scarlett

Macon, Ga., Jan. 22.—(AP)—Mrs. Walter D. Lamar, president general of the United Daughters of the Confederacy, moved tonight to end a brief revolt in her organization against the selection of an English actress for Scarlett O'Hara in the movie version of "Gone With the Wind." Mrs. Lamar, in an interview, said she considers the selection of Vivien Leigh, auburn haired beauty from London, to be excellent.

The Housewife

There are several excellent window ventilators on the market. They are made like small screens of metal and they fit into the window in such a way that you can raise or lower the sash without removing them.

One that is especially efficient is a stormproof model that allows the air to come in but keeps out rain and snow, no matter how hard the wind is blowing. Direct drafts are avoided because all the air passing through the ventilator must make two complete reversals of direction, due to a baffling arrangement.

This device is made to fit standard sized windows from 16 inches to 52. Longer ones may be ordered. You can place it either at the bottom or the top of the window, as you please. Its price is most reasonable.

According to CULBERTSON

[Copyright: 1939: By Ely Culbertson.]

Apparently there still are a great many bridge players in the country who believe that "a game's a game." Question 47 of the recent examination brought this out:

Both sides vulnerable, the bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South	West
1 heart	Pass	2 diamonds	Pass
4 hearts	Pass	?

You are South and hold:

♠ K 4 ♥ Q 2 ♦ A J 9 7 4 3 ♣ K 5 3

What call do you make?

The official answer was that South should bid five hearts; that with strength in every suit and a total of two and one-half-plus honor tricks he should not be satisfied with a mere game, but should signify slam aspirations. Of the approximate 20,000 answers that were sent in on this question 12,256 gave pass as South's correct bid; 5,518 agreed with my five hearts; 2,231 jumped to six hearts.

As previously announced there was no demerit for a six heart bid on South's part because he certainly could not be blamed for being slam-minded. I am inclined to think, however, that the 15 point demerit I assigned to a pass was much too lenient. North's four heart bid is in no sense a game closing bid if it is used properly. It is a stronger bid than the jump rebid of three hearts would be, inasmuch as this latter would not be absolutely forcing. Certainly this is a matter of sheer logic. If the strong three heart rebid puts the partnership only to the nine trick level, whereas a four heart rebid puts it to the ten trick level, the higher bid must per se represent a stronger hand. There is only one well defined situation in contract in which a higher bid is weaker in implication than a lower bid. Compare these two sequences:

1. South	North	2. South	North
1 spade	4 spades	1 spade	3 spades

Since North's three spade bid in sequence 2 is absolutely forcing, North can afford to make that bid with an enormously strong hand. This permits us to use the four spade bid in sequence 1 as a pure shut-out. The latter, however, must not be confused with the jump rebid mentioned in question 47.

The bidding:

2 clubs	Pass	3 clubs	Pass
3 no trump	Pass	Pass	Pass

South's last bid was an out-and-out "stab," but, due to a poor defensive play, turned out very well.

West opened the diamond three. East cashed the ace and king and then woodenly returned the nine spot. This established dummy's diamond ten and, by finding the spade ace on side, declarer had an easy time fulfilling his optimistic contract.

The play East made at the third trick is seen all too often in average circles. Under certain circumstances it is proper to swap trick for trick with the enemy, but in this case East should have realized that his partner's diamond queen [which was marked from the opening lead] could wait until the setting tricks were in sight. What good could it do to establish dummy's diamond ten when the establishment of it would bring the defenders to only three tricks? As a matter of fact East could have returned any other card of his remaining eleven [except the heart ten] and declarer would have faced a hopeless contract.

Huge Patterns, New Contrasts Startle Buyers

BY RHEA SEEGER.

Uncommon clothes featuring materials with strange contrasts of color and very different streamlines not only startle you out of your midseason coma but make the more susceptible shoppers positively pop-eyed. Outsize checks and squares not a shadow smaller than four inches, make daytime as well as eye catching new dance dresses.

One especially lovely affair is made of soft gray, white and black squares. The skirt is cut wide and swirling in a circle; the bodice is snugly fitted; the short sleeves are butterfly puffed. Around the small waistline is a tangerine suede belt. The dress takes both the breath and the money away without hesitation.

Daytime dresses also get the gargantuan checks or squares; yellow with black; red with black. These are big enough to shake you into the realization that checks, plaids, and large patterns are going to cause no little stir among the clothes collectors. Taffetas, with the same huge pattern idea, will make some outstanding dresses to slide under a dark wool coat. And if you can't manage an entire dress of such boldly sized squares and plaids, you'll lose your heart to snappy little short jackets, effective blouses, or the plaid patterned, big brimmed hats and matching handbags. And the handbags are large in capacity as well as in the plaid pattern of the covers.

New smart small felt hats go wild with a big checked taffeta scarf trim. Aprons for dark wool dresses are made of handsome, eye blinding taffetas and tie with a big bow either front or back. There are enough ways to use checks and plaids in large area designs to keep you and the spectators amused for days.

And the fun has just begun! Thin woolens, spongy textures in novelty weaves and crackling new taffetas, all by the yard, will tempt the make-your-own sewers. And there are plenty of the same compelling plaids and checks in costumes ready to wear out.

These new clothes will take your mind off winter weather.

Child's Moods Called Sign of His Growth

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

[Copyright: 1939: By The Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Syndicate, Inc.]

Perhaps this will help you: Don't think of everything your child does which doesn't seem to you perfect as being a fault. Think of it, instead, as part of his growth and development—as his attempt to adjust himself to a world whose ways are not natural to him—and almost always not understandable.

Listen to these extracts from letters:

"My baby boy used to be so sweet, but now he says 'no' to everything. I don't want him to grow up to be that kind of child."

"My little girl is 4½. She used to do everything I asked her, but now she is getting to be so disobedient. It worries me."

"My boy used to love to help me around the house, but now I have to actually nag him to get things done. I don't want him to grow up to be lazy."

"My boy is 7 and he is getting to be almost impudent and shows off when we have friends around."

All this behavior is not permanent but due to changes that are taking place in your child. Intense absorption in play and lack of fluent speech springs a "no." With a growing sense of power comes disobedience.

When chores become mechanical a child begins to lose interest. When playmates show the way by bravado and funny antics, these are practiced on the family at home as an experiment. These are normal changes which are likely to come to every child, but which, handled sensibly, pass quickly by only to give place to another phase of his development.

And when the last stage, adolescence, appears you will need all the wisdom at your command to remind yourself constantly that the surprising and often worrisome changing behavior of these years is only part of a vital and difficult adjustment.

YEAR'S SLEUTHING SOLVES BOOKIE KILLING BY GANG

Two Admit Fatal Holdup; Implicate Third.

Three young hoodlums, charged with the killing of a handbook operator in their first attempt at big money robbery, were in custody yesterday. Two of them were captured after eleven months of detective work. They implicated a third outlaw already under sentence of a year to life in prison.

The pair locked up at the detective bureau are Peter [Husk] Biron, 22 years old, 5518 Dorchester avenue, and Charles McCarthy, 21, of 5158 Morgan street. According to police records, Biron was put on probation in 1937 for burglary. McCarthy is on probation for auto theft.

Prisoner Denies Charge.

They said their companion was Stanton Cooke, 21, who, under the name of Roger McPatrick, is in the county jail awaiting transfer to Joliet penitentiary. He denied participating in the crime. But he has been identified by the daughter of the slain man, as well as by Biron and McCarthy, police said.

The victim was John Delcourt, 49 years old, 6604 Lowe avenue. He was shot to death last Feb. 10 in an alley on 65th street between Lowe and Union avenues. His daughter, Hazel, 18, had met him at the entrance to the alley a moment earlier. She noticed the three young men loitering nearby, and later heard the fatal shot.

Biron and McCarthy said in their confessions to Sergt. Jack Hanrahan of the detective bureau that they and Cooke had tired of holding up street car conductors and filling stations. They wanted big money. They learned Delcourt ran a handbook in the rear of a barber shop near 65th and Halsted streets.

Find "Money Box" Empty.

They trailed him home, their eyes on a cigar box he carried. They thought it contained handbook profits. Delcourt resisted when they accosted him in the alley. Biron fired one shot. The bullet struck Delcourt above the heart. The cigar box was empty. They fled.

Biron and McCarthy dropped out of sight. Cooke was arrested in the late summer, and on Oct. 17 was sentenced by Judge Walter T. Stanton to a year to life in prison for his part in seven robberies. Cooke was held temporarily in the county jail.

About the middle of November Sergt. Hanrahan learned from another jail inmate that Cooke had been mixed up in the Delcourt slaying. Another of the killers, the informant said, was known as "Husk." Detectives Frank Miller and Norman McGrath of the Englewood station, who had handled the original investigation, found that Biron had been known by this name. They seized him at 53d and Halsted streets Saturday. He told them of McCarthy and Cooke. McCarthy was arrested at home and also confessed, police said.

WHOOPING COUGH VICTIM SAVED BY INHALATOR UNIT

Two policemen and a fire department inhalator squad yesterday saved the life of Philip Darling Jr., 6 years old, of 4408 Lake Park avenue. The child, ill with whooping cough, was seized with a violent coughing spell and seemed unable to breathe.

Policemen Louis Schillig and John Gallagher of the Hyde Park station were summoned. They placed a pencil between the boy's jaws while waiting for an inhalator squad. Later, the child was revived by the squad directed by Lieut. Arthur Driscoll. At the Contagious disease hospital, where Philip was taken, physicians said he might have choked to death except for the prompt first aid.

Found Guilty of Slaying Rector on Georgia Island

Brunswick, Ga., Jan. 22.—(AP)—George Cleyborn, Negro, was convicted today of first degree murder for the shooting last February of Dr. Charles H. Lee, Episcopal rector of historic Christ church on St. Simons Island. The jury made a recommendation of mercy, which means a sentence of life imprisonment. Two white men, H. J. and W. H. Cofer, island resort owners, will be tried for the murder during the May term of court. The state charges they hired Cleyborn to kill the rector, who was killed by a bullet fired through a window of the rectory.

CITIZENS' ASSN. WILL TAKE OVER WORK OF M. V. L.

Civic Groups United to End Overlapping.

Amalgamation of the Citizens' association of Chicago and the Municipal Voters' league was announced yesterday in a joint statement by officers of the two organizations. The activities of the latter, which consisted chiefly of reporting on the qualifications of aldermanic candidates, will be taken over by the Citizens' association, but there will be no report issued before the primary election, Feb. 28.

Benjamin Affleck, president of Citizens' association.

This development marks the passing of the Municipal Voters' league after an existence of forty-two years. During that period it led many heated campaigns to improve the quality of the city council.

Explains Purpose of Merger.

"With the reduction in membership of the city council [from seventy to fifty]," the statement said, "and later the extension of the aldermanic term to four years, it has become increasingly evident that coördination of such activities would reduce overlapping and make possible more effective handling of this periodic service as well as the extension of activities not heretofore possible under the agencies operating separately.

"All this is in line with the experience in other large urban communities which has demonstrated that such integration of independent civic services is a sound move toward more effective accomplishment of good government."

Oldest Agency of Its Kind.

The Citizens' association, the oldest agency of its kind in Chicago, was organized in 1874 under the leadership of the late George E. Cole. The Municipal Voters' league was organized in 1897 by substantially the same group that was active in the older association.

Present officers of the Citizens' association include Benjamin F. Affleck, president; George R. Carr and E. W. Puttkammer, vice presidents; Bertram J. Cahn, treasurer, and Ernest W. Burgess, secretary.

The final roster of the M. V. L., as it frequently has been called, included Herbert J. Friedman as president, Clay Judson as vice president, and Burke Williamson as secretary.

LOUIS SAYS IT'S FOR KEEPS--AND LOOKS THE PART

Pounds Sparmates in Drill for Lewis.

Pompton Lakes, N. J., Jan. 22.—(AP)—Joseph Louis Barrow, a very determined young specialist in various assortments of mayhem, has made up his mind to play for keeps when he fights John Henry Lewis for the heavyweight title Wednesday night.

So John Henry can look for the roof to fall in on him in Madison Square Garden shortly after the party gets under way at approximately 9 o'clock [Chicago time] that evening.

That was the general idea one got today from watching Louis in his final heavy workout before the fight up here in the snow-covered Jersey countryside. He went through eleven rounds of action, six against sparmates, and wound up looking in as fine physical condition as at any time in his career.

Wants Another Indoor Bout.

And after he polishes off John Henry—he personally thinks it's a cinch to wind up in a knockout—he'll be ready for any opposition Promoter Mike Jacobs wants to bring on. He wants another shot indoors before the winter season is over, and then possibly two outdoors during the summer.

From the gossip you hear around his camp, it is possible Joe may meet Bob Pastor again in March, and there's a chance Tony Galento may have a crack at the crown in June or July.

But first there's the business at hand this week. There was some wonderment for a time as to just what mental frame of mind the Brown Bomber may take into the ring with him. It's something similar to that of the fellow who swings the cleaver in the slaughter house.

One observer asked Joe how far he thought the fight would go.

"Well," drawled Joe, as Trainer Jack Blackburn rubbed him down, "it won't go as far as that, if I have my way."

There's a Point, at Least.

One and all agreed the gag was terrible, but that Joe was getting the point across.

"I don't think Lewis' boxing style, that everybody's talking about, is so awfully tough," Joe explained. "I've seen him fight, and I think Tommy Farr's style, the night I fought him, was a lot harder to solve—he gave you the upside-down stuff and it would have puzzled anybody that night."

Louis' sparring partners were willing to admit, after today's workout, that John Henry is going to see lots of fireworks Wednesday. Jersey Joe Wolcott, once a fair-to-middling heavyweight; Basher Dean, with a snappy right hand, and Jim Howell, a rotund gentleman, were the parties of the first, second, and third round against Joe in his workout. Wolcott quit cold and walked out of the ring after Louis hit him on the chin in the second round. Dean did a little better, and Howell had a left hand that he kept sticking in Joe's face, but one and all were given a thorough going over.

Louis Weighs 203 Pounds.

The scales showed Louis at 203 pounds after it was over, and he'll probably weigh in at about 200 even for the fight. Actually, he has had less boxing work for this fight than any one of his four previous title defenses, but he has been in training longer. He has been at this lake camp since Dec. 27. Before that he had six weeks of road work and milder practice in West Baden, Ind.

LEWIS ENDS HARD DRILLS

Summit, N. J., Jan. 22.—(AP)—John Henry Lewis, looking fit and fast for his Wednesday night date with Heavyweight Champion Joe Louis, boxed six rounds today in his last big workout before the fifteen round title bout in Madison Square Garden, New York.

Lewis, who holds the National Boxing association's light heavyweight crown, made no effort to maul his sparring partners as he pranced through two rounds each with a Bobby Smith of North Carolina and a Bob Smith of Detroit and then one round each with Sunny Jim McVey of Pittsburgh and Bobby Birch of New York.

The Detroit Smith succeeded in penetrating Lewis' defense with several jolting rights to the body, but the challenger kept the proceedings under control at all times.

OLE MISS GIVES MEHRE CONTRACT FOR FIVE YEARS

The 1938 football season was the first under Mehre's direction at Ole Miss and was considered one of the best in the school's history. Under the former University of Georgia mentor, the Rebels won nine of eleven games, losing to Vanderbilt and Tennessee.

MINNESOTA AND ILLINOIS BATTLE FOR LEAD TONIGHT

Ohio State Faces Michigan on Columbus Court.

Games Tonight

Michigan at Ohio State.
Illinois at Minnesota.
Notre Dame at John Carroll.
Michigan State at Tennessee.

The Western conference basketball lead will be at stake tonight in Minneapolis, where Illinois and Minnesota meet in one of the two games which usher in another week of competition curtailed by midyear examinations. Ohio State entertains Michigan in the other contest.

Illinois went into first place Saturday night by conquering Wisconsin, 37 to 34, for its fourth victory of the season. Minnesota, the preseason favorite, is in second place with three triumphs. Each has suffered one defeat.

Gophers Face Real Test.

Minnesota has not played since it lost to Northwestern last Monday to break its string of nineteen consecutive victories. Its defense is expected to meet the severest test of the season when it tackles the Illini, who have piled up 183 points in five conference starts.

Wisconsin attempted to thwart the Illini rush to first place Saturday by paying strict attention to Pick Dehner, who entered the contest as the conference's second highest scorer, but while it labored to limit Dehner to ten points, Forward Bill Hapac accounted for 17 to bring Illinois its second triumph of the week. Earlier it had beaten Ohio State, 45 to 31.

A Lot Depends on the Game.

A resumption of its victory march tonight can lift Minnesota to first place with a percentage of .800, in which event Illinois may find itself as far down as fourth place behind Ohio State and Indiana, provided Ohio State defeats Michigan. Ohio State engages in the only other conference game on the week's schedule, meeting Chicago in Columbus Saturday.

Michigan, led by Sophomore Tom Harmon, who contributed six field goals and five free throws for 17 points, defeated a crippled Iowa team, 47 to 32, Saturday night to break even in the week's play. It had lost to Wisconsin, 42 to 39, earlier.

Iowa Star Is Out.

Iowa was at a disadvantage against Michigan, having been deprived of its chief scoring threat, Ben Stephens, who suffered an attack of influenza Saturday and was withheld from the game.

Michigan States goes south to meet Tennessee tonight, and Notre Dame stops off in Cleveland on the way home from the east to play John Carroll in a non-conference contest. Notre Dame whipped Canisius, 72 to 37, in Buffalo Saturday, while John Carroll was defeating Baldwin Wallace, 37 to 24.

Silver Skates Derbies Are Set for Tomorrow

THE TRIBUNE'S annual Silver Skates Derbies, postponed from Jan. 14 and 15 because of warm weather, will be held tomorrow night, barring a sudden break in the present cold snap. The site and the time have not been set definitly, but will be announced in tomorrow morning's TRIBUNE. Skaters are asked to consult tomorrow's TRIBUNE for the starting time and the name of the rink.

Workmen were engaged last night to prepare La Follette park and it was tentatively planned to begin the races at 5 o'clock tomorrow. Whether the La Follette rink will be available depends on how long the rise in temperature forecast by weather bureau officials holds off. A continuation of the near zero temperature of yesterday may make it possible to hold the Derbies in Garfield park on the lagoon. Final decision will be made today.

Baseball's Gambling Table

A Story of Expensive Failures and Surprise Bargains in Big League Player Deals

[This is the third of a series covering major league transactions in which, for better or worse, big money was spent either with a minor circuit or to move an athlete from one major team to another.]

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

RICHARD W. LE MARQUIS still stands as about the fanciest name ever trotted into major league baseball circles. Richard W. Le Marquis never broke into a box score or into the record books in exactly that many letters, but in an altered shape it was in the former and it still is in the latter. It's there as Rube Marquard, who as a mere kid, came into the big show with a suicide weight around his neck. The weight was an $11,000 price tag which at the time set a new high for lavish spending by a major club.

Rube Marquard.

The Rube was only 19 in the season of 1908 when, without advance notice, he suddenly blossomed as the bellwether of the Indianapolis team of the American association. Toward the end of that race which the Hoosiers won, the New York Giants paid the aforementioned money, took Pitcher Lou Durham as excess baggage, and called in both almost immediately. The poor Rube was bewildered by it all. He couldn't win. He became known as the $11,000 lemon. But Rube's day finally arrived and those who had written of him as citrus fruit had to rush to the dictionary to seek the choicest superlatives.

McGraw Refused to Concede He Had a Lemon.

Richard, who was Richie in his home town of Cleveland where he seldom was seen without a baseball or glove and who later became Rube, a handle given to many southpaws such as he was, remained in durance vile throughout 1910 and '11. Ordinarily big league clubs don't fool around that long. But the Rube was an $11,000 investment—mere small change as prices go nowadays—and if John McGraw, then the Giant manager, was responsible for the retention it undoubtedly was out of sheer determination. McGraw had a few drops of the blood of a despot in his veins and although it has since been said that he wasn't responsible for Marquard's purchase in the first place, he resolved to go beyond the average limit to kill off the lemon flavor which was an indirect reflection on his baseball foresight.

Marquard made his first big league start soon after his arrival late in 1908 when the pennant race was bubbling, the Giants as well as the Pirates and Cubs being in a tight tangle. It was afterward reported that McGraw didn't want to use the youngster for reasons other than that the conditions of the flag campaign didn't warant an experiment. The starting of the Rube was supposed to have been ordered by John Brush, who as owner of the Giants was McGraw's boss. McGraw didn't favor Rube because he was a slat-like kid, lacked control, and having a wry neck didn't look as if he ever would be able to pitch. The slight deformity made it appear as if Rube was peering toward first base when he actually had his eyes on the batter. Maybe this delusion—the batter thought it such—added to effectiveness after he had, as a bench observer, developed confidence.

Three On—Rube Throws Lobert Home Run Ball.

McGraw, of course, seldom had patience with rookies. McGraw, from his place on the bench or from the coaching box, directed every move made by the Giants. He was the boss and wanted to fall or get up on his own judgment. He gave orders to his batters on every pitch. He signaled his own pitchers what to throw. He favored curve balls against speed. Possibly that was another reason he didn't look kindly on Marquard. The Rube was fast, although he didn't know where his pitches might land, at least not in his first couple of big league years.

Anyway the Rube made his debut late in 1908 before he had shaken off the minor league hay seeds. The start came to a quick finish. It was in a game against the Cincinnati Reds at the Polo Grounds. The Rube never had pitched before more than 7,000 spectators. On this day there were 35,000 present to see the human lemon and the kid was somewhat awed. The first batter was Miller Huggins. Rube hit him on the head with the maiden pitch. The next two walked and the bases were filled with none out. Hans Lobert was next and McGraw wigwagged for the Rube to get a pitch over the plate. Lobert knocked it out of the park and the Marquard entry into big league competition was at a conclusion.

In 1909, Marquard pitched 165 innings as a Giant, but his record at the finish was an unpromising five victories against thirteen defeats. In 1910 he was a bit better. He won four while losing the same number in only seventy-three innings of toil. But during all of this time there was action behind the scenes. McGraw thought Marquard should pitch overhand which wasn't his style. That alone might have been enough to delay him. In disgust, or because of confidence in the tutor, McGraw told Wilbert Robinson, afterward the jovial Uncle Wilbert who managed the Dodgers, to take charge of the $11,000 lemon. As an old catcher, Uncle Wilbert knew what to do, so maybe he was responsible for putting the $11,000 lemon on a paying basis.

Cubs Stopped Marquard's Bid for 20th in Row.

Now we reach the time when Marquard became the sensation of the National league. In 1911, when the Giants won the pennant, Rube had a record of twenty-four victories and seven defeats. He was in no fewer than forty-five games. But he climbed higher. During 1912, in forty-three games, he won twenty-six while losing eleven, also being twice winner that fall in the world series with the Red Sox—a series the Giants lost because of the memorable muff of an easy fly ball by Outfielder Fred Snodgrass. That isn't all about the Rube in 1912. He peeled off nineteen straight victories among the twenty-six and the achievement still defies the pitching world.

Marquard began his nineteen in a row April 11, 1912, when he whipped Brooklyn by 18 to 3. It continued until July 3 when he beat the Dodgers again, this time by 2 to 1 with Nap Rucker as an opponent. Meanwhile, he had relieved in another game which if scored under present rules would have given him a string of twenty victories. But he came a cropper seeking his next triumph. It was on the Cubs' old west side grounds on July 8 and he was driven from the hill for a final score of 7 to 2, Jim Lavender being the Chicago pitcher. The Cubs of that time thought this appropriate. Weeks' earlier [June 12] they had his string stopped at twelve. Lurid Lew Richie, the old Giant Killer had hurt himself and Mordecai Brown relieved. Going into the home eighth the Cubs were ahead by 2 to 1, but Tillie Shafer batted for Marquard and hit a homer into the Polo Ground's seats. Otis Crandall disposed of the Cubs in the ninth and Marquard's string was saved by 3 to 2.

VINCE DUNDEE, WIFE INJURED AS AUTO HITS TRAIN

Bloomfield, N. J., Jan. 22.—(AP)—Vince Dundee, of Belleville, N. J., former world middleweight boxing champion; his wife, Constance, and Thomas F. Carey of Albany, N. Y., were injured tonight when the automobile in which they were riding was hurled 300 feet in a collision with a passenger train.

Police Captain Arthur Wilhaelm said they were removed to Mountainside hospital in Glen Ridge where they underwent X-ray examinations. Mrs. Dundee was most seriously hurt, Capt. Wilhaelm said, adding "how they escaped alive was miraculous."

Dundee, whose real name is Vincent Lazzaro, is a native of Baltimore. He won and lost the middleweight title in 1933. He is 29 years old.

Capt. Wilhaelm said the Dundee's only child, Vincent Jr., underwent an operation for a burst appendix today in Homeopathic hospital in East Orange.

METZ TAKES 2D GOLF TITLE IN ROW ON COAST

Defeats Horton Smith in San Francisco Open, 1 Up.

San Francisco, Cal., Jan. 22.—(AP)—Dick Metz of Chicago defeated Horton Smith, Oak Park, Ill., 1 up, today in the 36 hole final of the $5,000 San Francisco match play open golf tournament. Metz won with a brilliant afternoon performance after being 2 down at the 18 hole mark.

The victory was worth $1,000 to Metz and $500 to Smith. It was Dick's second major tournament victory within a week. Last Monday he won the $5,000 Oakland 72 hole open in an 18 hole playoff with E. J. Harrison of Oak Park. That feat netted him $1,200.

For 23 holes today Metz trailed Smith. Twice he was three down, at the fourth and thirteenth holes. At the ninth he was 1 down and at the eighteenth 2 down.

Squares Match on 24th.

Metz fought on with dogged determination. At the 24th hole he squared the match while a gallery of 3,000 cheered. He took the next two holes with birdies, but lost the 27th to Smith's birdie, to be 1 up.

Dick had turned the third nine in 33, 2 under par, for the Lakeside course, and appeared on his way to a certain victory. The picture changed twice, however. Smith evened matters on the 28th, yielded two more holes to Metz, then squared it again at the 34th.

The turning point came on the next hole. Metz hit a five foot putt into the cup to go 1 up. The last was halved.

Wins on Iron Shots.

Metz's iron shots to the green proved the determining factor. He was straight to the pin, meanwhile knocking in his share of putts. Smith's ball landed in traps frequently and his putting was erratic.

For 225 holes played here and in Oakland, Metz was eighteen under par. He was eleven under for 135 holes in the San Francisco tournament.

In Memoriam.

A year ago this morning there appeared in the Wake a poem by John O. Seys, vice president of the Cubs, titled "I Wonder." A few days later Mr. Seys died of pneumonia. His last contribution to this column was as follows:

I wonder when this day is done
And we are called up yonder,
I wonder if the good or bad
Will create too much ponder.

I wonder if they'll have a place
Where good friends meet at jest,
I wonder if we'll meet again,
And will we stand the test.

I wonder how it's balanced off,
The good against the bad.
I wonder if there's room for all,
The lame, the sick, the sad.

I wonder if the things we read
Are only partly true.
I wonder when I go up there,
If I will contact you.

I wonder how the place is run,
I wonder what our lot will be.
I wonder what there is in store,
For you and you and me.
I wonder. —J. O. S.

Mrs. Seys, his widow, today submits the following sequel to "I Wonder":

I often wonder if he knew
When he wrote those lines "I Wonder"
That soon he'd ope the portals wide,
Where the good and bad don't ponder.

I wonder if he's met the test,
And friends gone on before.
I'm sure he knows we'll meet again
On that celestial shore.

I wonder if it's balanced off,
As he would have it be,
The lame, the sick in happiness
With room for you and me.

I wonder if he knows today
The things he read are true,
And if he knows he'll contact me
And you and you and you.

He knows now how the place is run
And what our lot will be,
And what there is in store for us,
For you and you and me.
—W. E. Seys.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

Mush March, assisted by Earl Seibert and Johnny Gottselig, scored a goal for the Blackhawks in 7 minutes and 48 seconds of the first period in a hocky match against the New York Americans in the Stadium last night. But the Hawks couldn't make it stand up for victory and had to be content with their second successive 1 to 1 tie. A week previously March scored the lone Chicago marker in a 1-all deadlock with the Americans' fellow townsmen, the Rangers, after which the Hawks went into training in Muskegon, Mich., for a week.

A crowd of 13,586, lured, perhaps, by tales of great inspiration found by the Hawks during their sojourn on the eastern shores of Lake Michigan, didn't seem altogether pleased with things after Nels Stewart, who is only a few months younger than the game of hocky itself, tied the score in 18 minutes and 22 seconds of the second period.

The Referee Is Unpopular.

The Bronx cheer was the mode more than on any other occasion this season, and when the customers weren't hooting the players of both sides they were throwing missils at Referee Norman Lamport, a fancy skater who didn't get as much chance as he desired to perform graceful evolutions.

Mr. Lamport became so vexed in the overtime period that he assessed Bill Thoms a ten minute misconduct penalty for using coarse language, and when Manager Paul Thompson questioned Lamport's ruling he was given a ten minute misconduct penalty after refusing to address Lamport as "Mister."

All this business was attended by showers of playing cards, bottle tops, and miscellaneous débris while the organ blared away at "We Won't Go Home Till Morning."

It Was Good, If You Liked It.

It was very gala, for everybody who doesn't mind not seeing lively hocky.

With all the apparent futility the evening produced, the Hawks, with the one point derived from their fifth tie of the season, took undisputed possession of fifth place, breaking a standing tie with the Detroit Red Wings, who were whipped by the Boston Bruins, 5 to 0.

Just as March's goal a week ago enabled the Hawks to stay even with the Rangers in season play with one tie, two victories, and two defeats, so Mush's counter last night knotted affairs with the Americans. Previously the Hawks had won two games from the Americans here and the Americans had won two in New York.

Red Wings Are Next.

The Americans will go home by plane today, a new tendency in hocky this season, while the Hawks will try to improve in Chicago in the hope they will be able to beat the Red Wings for the first time this season when the Detroiters come to the Stadium Thursday night.

The Hawks yesterday loaned Rookie Phil Besler, a right wing, to Cleveland of the International-American league.

EXAMINE C. Y. O. GOLDEN GLOVES ENTRIES TONIGHT

They Must Be Healthy to Pass This Test.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

The amateur boxers of the Catholic Youth Organization will report tonight at the C. Y. O. gymnasium, 31 East Congress street, for their physical examinations and to receive instructions for the Chicago Golden Gloves tournaments. All who pass required tests this evening may select the Chicago tournament in which they wish to compete. The first of these is the west side tournament, which will start in the Madison Athletic club, 4711 Madison street, Feb. 1.

Tomorrow night more than 900 boxers who have received instructions will report for physical examinations in Trafton's gymnasium, 180 West Randolph street. The gymnasium is on the fifth floor. All boys should report between 6 p. m. and 8 p. m. Each boy who is under 21 years of age must bring a parental consent card signed by his parents or guardian. Unless this permission is obtained the right to compete in Golden Gloves will be denied. All boxers must be at least 16 years of age. This is the requirement of the Central association of the A. A. U., under whose sanction the bouts are held.

Staf of Twelve Doctors.

The physical examinations will be conducted by the staf of twelve doctors associated with The Tribune Charities, Inc. After passing the physical tests, the boys then are assigned to sectional tournaments. A second examination is given on the afternoon of the bouts. The list of physicians who assume the responsibility for the health of the contestants follows:

Dr. William Rothman, Dr. Harold Marsh, Dr. Clarence T. Plaut, Dr. Ernest R. Stoehr, Dr. Edward H. Rategan, Dr. George W. Andrew, Dr. J. V. Russell, Dr. James Walsh, Dr. Ernest D. Ponzer, Dr. John C. Wall, Dr. Philip R. McGuire, and Dr. James M. Wall.

From 5 to 7 per cent of all contestants reporting for initial examinations are rejected. Frequently the reason for disqualification is not at all serious, but the physicians refuse to permit any boy to take a chance, no matter how slight. Contestants are examined immediately after each bout in which the contest is stopped on the referee's order.

Twelve Minutes in Ring.

Each boy is examined again before he enters the ring a second time. No boy may box more than twice in one evening. Since all matches consist of three rounds of two minutes each, the maximum time in the ring is twelve minutes. The Golden Gloves international bouts and the National A. A. U. tournaments are fought in three minute rounds.

In the Tournament of Champions Feb. 27, 28, and March 1 no boy will box more than four times in three days. This applies to the sixty-four quarter-finalists. The boys who draw a bye in the first round can advance to the semi-finals by competing only three times.

No Entry After Feb. 4.

Coach Sonny Weissman of Armour Tech has entered ten boys in the Chicago novice tournaments. They will be examined Jan. 31 in Trafton's gym. If they fail to report then they may come to the same place Feb. 10. This is the last physical examination and permits entry in the northwest or north side tournaments. No entry will be accepted after Feb. 4.

Pete Ferrand, Tony Walker, and Otto Fischl will represent Bill Rand's Boys' club in the open division of the Chicago tournament. Fischl is one of the better heavyweights. The same club also will enter ten boxers in the novice tournaments.

If any boy who sent in his entry blank before last Wednesday has not received notification to report for examination he should send in another blank. Although care is taken in mailing letters, a score or more in every group is returned because of incorrect address. Since last Wednesday all letters have been filed for the Jan. 31 examination.

PITT ATHLETES BARRED IN A.A.U. TRACK MEETS

Pittsburgh, Pa., Jan. 22.—(AP)—University of Pittsburgh athletes were forbidden today from competing in open track meets by the registration committee of the Allegheny Mountain association of the Amateur Athletic union.

As a result, Johnny Woodruff and other members of the Pitt track team will not be permitted to participate in the Millrose, New York Athletic club, Penn A. C., and Boston A. C. indoor meets.

The committee voted six to one yesterday to withhold traveling permits or sanctions for Pitt athletes to compete in other sections.

The committee said it decided to take such drastic action after, a spokesman reported, Carl Olson, Pitt track coach, failed to return travel permits for meets during the past two indoor seasons.

Coach Olson, denying he failed to return travel permits, said:

"If the association wants to take such drastic action we'll have to keep our boys at home."

Canadiens Fall Before Ranger Attack, 7 to 3

New York, Jan. 22.—(AP)—The New York Rangers, led by Mac Colville, tonight defeated the Montreal Canadiens, 7 to 3 in a National Hocky league game played before a crowd of 11,113 in Madison Square Garden.

The last place Canadiens, who were without the services of the injured George Mantha and Jimmy Ward, played aggressive, wide open hocky that was spoiled by poor passing in front of the net. The Rangers found the Montreal defense an easy mark.

Besides Mac Colville, who scored two goals and had an assist, the Ranger marksmen were Neil Colville, Phil Watson, George Allen, Al Shibicky and Lynn Patrick, who was in the lineup for the first time since he suffered a knee injury before the New Year. Paul Haynes, Armand Mondou, and Louis Trudel scored for the Canadiens. Lineups:

CAVALIERS PLAY OKLAHOMA ON COLISEUM COURT

With another hometown boy playing center against them, the La Salle Hotel Cavaliers will try to defeat the Phillips five of Bartlesville, Okla., tonight in a Missouri Valley A. A. U. league contest, main attraction of a triple-header in the Coliseum.

The Oklahomans' center is Fred Troutwine, 6 feet 9 inch former Lake View High school star. Last Saturday night Bob Gruenig, one-time Lane center and scoring ace, led the Denver Nuggets to a victory over the Cavaliers, scoring twenty-six points and setting a difficult pattern for Troutwine to follow.

Two girls' teams, Bill Rands and Taylor Trunks, will open the program at 7:15 o'clock. Next to take the court will be two of the country's top ranking professional teams, the New York Renaissance and the Sheboygan Redskins.

LU TANG'S SKI HI IS VICTORIOUS IN CHOW CHOW SHOW

Champion Lu Tang's Ski Hi, 4 year old chow dog owned by Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Siebert, Chicago, yesterday won the first specialty show staged by the newly-formed Chicagoland Chow Chow club. The event was held in the Stevens hotel, with fifty-two chows competing.

The victory of Ski Hi marked the second important triumph by a Siebert dog in Chicago competition this season. One of their other champions —Lu Tang's Son Too—was judged the best of its breed in the Western Specialty Club show held in the Coliseum last November.

SOVIET AX FALLS ON LAX AIR AND WATER WORKERS

Decorate Cotton Farmers for Bumper Crop.

MOSCOW, Jan. 22.—(AP)—The big stick of soviet Russia's drive against loafers and lax executives fell today on workers in civil aviation and water transport while collective farmers received awards for a bumper cotton crop. Several pilots and a number of air line, aviation factory, and airport officials were punished.

An order issued by Vasily Sergeyevitch Molokov, chief of the civil air fleet, accused 15 important executives of shielding lazy flyers or disorganizers of aviation production. Only one, the managing director of an airplane accessories factory, was held for criminal prosecution.

Dismiss Air Manager.

Others were removed, demoted, or sharply reprimanded. Among those dismissed was the acting manager of the far eastern department of the civil air fleet. He was said to have stayed away from work Jan. 7 and 8 —Christmas holidays by the Russian Orthodox church calendar.

The newspaper Workers of Moscow reported four laboratory workers of the soviet film industry convicted of inexcusable wastage of material and sentenced to ten years. Three others were given three and two year sentences, and several others shorter terms.

Sentences of three months and six months, respectively, were given by the Peoples court to the managing director and trafic manager of Moscow's trolley bus terminal No. 2 because they "protected loafers," thus disorganizing service.

Molokov also ordered the dismissal of three pilots, two air technicians, and an aviation engineer who were accused of being "loafers."

No Loafers for Waterways.

Nikolai Yezhov, commissar of water transport, pressed the government drive against laziness on the soviet union's inland waterways. He ordered four executives removed and held for trial, including the managing directors of ship repair plants at Astrakhan, Moscow, and Taganrog.

But in the Uzbek Republic, 315 collective farmers were decorated in reward for the rich cotton crop.

King Cotton is one monarch who not only is tolerated, but encouraged in soviet Russia. About 5,000,000 acres now are planted in cotton, mostly on collective farms in the Caucasian and middle Asian areas. In a decade the harvest has increased by more than 300 per cent, due partly to more extensive planting, but mostly to an increase in yield per acre.

American Killed in Crash of Plane He Borrowed

MANILA, Jan. 22.—(AP)—Walter L. Parman, 32 years old, employé of the Philippine Refining company, was killed today when a borrowed light plane he was piloting crashed at one of Manila's commercial airports. The plane went into a tailspin while the pilot was maneuvering into position to land. Parman is survived by his widow and two children who reside in Cincinnati.

NEWS OF FINANCE AND COMMERCE

PUTS M'KESSON FIRM'S ASSETS AT 66 MILLIONS

Trustee's Estimate Pares 20 Million.

New York, Jan. 22.—[Special.]—An unaudited statement of the condition of McKesson & Robbins, Inc., was issued today by William J. Wardall, trustee for the company. One disclosure was that Wardall had written off as a possible total loss $1,421,000 invested in the common stock of Canadian and English branches.

Wardall said the unaudited statement as of Nov. 30, 1938, had been prepared as a clew to the present condition of the company. Its purpose was to offset, as far as possible, any bad effects of the collapse of the régime of F. Donald Coster as its president. Coster committed suicide recently when it was revealed that he was an ex-convict named Philip Musica.

Puts Assets at $66,115,001.

Although various investigations will continue, including those being conducted by a federal grand jury, by the office of States Attorney General John J. Bennett Jr., by District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey and by the Securities and Exchange commission, Wardall said he wanted stockholders and investors to know what he had found.

His findings showed assets of $66,115,001. The $66,115,001 compared with assets of $86,556,270 shown in the report for Oct. 31. This represented a shrinkage of more than 20 million dollars. Deficit of $8,943,371 on Nov. 30 compared with combined capital surplus and earned surplus of more than 10 million dollars Oct. 31. Wardall set liabilities at $38,345,357.

Wardall's statement said in part:

"On Dec. 8, 1938, McKesson & Robbins, Inc., filed a petition for reorganization under chapter X of the Chandler act in the district court of the United States for the southern district of New York. The accountants for the trustee are presently engaged in an audit as at Dec. 7, 1938, and Dec. 31, 1938. It is not expected that statements as of Dec. 7, 1938, will be available for some time.

Eliminate Fictitious Assets.

"In view of the fact that certain assets on the books of the company are believed to be fictitious or worthless and no statement has been released by the company with such fictitious or worthless assets eliminated, it is realized that some estimated statement of assets and liabilities as at a date approximating Dec. 7, 1938, would be welcome at this time, eliminating those assets presently believed to be fictitious.

"Accordingly, a tentative estimated consolidated statement of assets and liabilities of McKesson & Robbins, Inc., and wholly owned subsidiary companies, as at Nov. 30, 1938 [except certain subsidiaries.]

Tells Basis of Statement.

"No provision has been made in this estimated statement for: [1] reorganization expenses, [2] additional federal income taxes assessed against the corporation for the years 1931, 1933, and 1936; [3] possible loss on advances to Anglo-Swiss Acceptance Corporation, Ltd., and Anglo-French Finance Corporation, Ltd., of $335,000 pending the valuation of collateral.

"Provision for loss has been made for the entire investment in the common stock of McKesson & Robbins, Ltd., partially owned Canadian company, and also for the entire amount due from that company and its wholly owned subsidiary, McKesson & Robbins, Ltd. [England], which according to the books aggregate $1,421,000."

URGE CONGRESS PERMIT PRIVATE GOLD HOLDINGS

Washington, D. C., Jan. 22.—(AP)—The American Mining congress today urged congress to legalize private ownership of gold coins and bars in the United States.

The organization said the proposal would relieve the treasury of the problem of continuing to buy the metal because purchasers would absorb newly mined supplies of the metal and shipments from foreign countries.

President Roosevelt recently asked congress to extend to Jan. 15, 1941, his power to change the gold content of the dollar and to operate the 2 billion dollar stabilization fund as a means of stabilizing the relative value of the dollar to foreign currencies. That authority expires June 30 unless renewed by congress.

ASSETS OF BANK OF NOVA SCOTIA INCREASE IN 1938

New York, Jan. 22.—[Special.]—The Bank of Nova Scotia today reported that total resources of $309,305,815 at the close of 1938, a gain of $9,826,113 for the year. It had deposits of $253,291,054, a gain of more than $10,000,000. Cash assets of $33,010,246 showed little change.

Earnings for 1938 amounted to $1,980,770, after $535,878 in dominion and provincial taxes, a decline of $1,370 from 1937.

Presents New 1939 Line of Home Appliances

The Sampson Electric company, distributors of Norge household appliances, presented the new 1939 line of products at a meeting of 700 dealers and salesmen yesterday at the Knickerbocker hotel. H. E. Blood, president of the Norge division of the Borg-Warner corporation, said at the meeting that factory orders so far this month are three times larger than in the corresponding 1938 period.

FEDERAL BOARD FINDS COAL INDUSTRY LOSES 37 MILLIONS A YEAR

Washington, D. C., Jan. 22.—(AP)—The bituminous coal commission told congress today "grave social consequences" might follow if something is not done to stop the soft coal industry from losing money at the rate of $37,000,000 a year.

In its annual report the commission added, however, that it needed time for the extensive fact finding determinations required by the Guffey-Vinson coal act. The commission was given the task of establishing a schedule of minimum prices at the mines which would permit the industry to "obtain an average income equal to its average cost."

The commission's estimate of a $37,000,000 loss was based on 1937 figures.

The commission was set up in May, 1937. It published a schedule of minimum prices in December, 1937, but they were revoked two months later after consumers and producers attacked them in court on the grounds the prices were set without proper hearings.

The commission told congress it was now following a procedure intended to safeguard the rights of all parties.

3 FIRMS TO USE NEW METHOD OF MAKING GASOLINE

Equipment for a new gasoline making process, developed by the Universal Oil Products company of Chicago, will be installed by three large oil companies, Universal officials said yesterday. They said the installations will cost millions of dollars and will produce an improved type of gasoline.

The new method is called a "catalytic cracking process." By "cracking" is meant the splitting apart of molecules. In the new process oil is vaporized and the vapors pass over the surface of a catalyst, which parts the molecules, rearranging them as required for gasoline.

Universal officials said installations are planned by the Shell Union Oil corporation, the Texas corporation, and the Consolidated Oil corporation.

BEATRICE WARANTS.

Investors' Guide: As a holder of fifty shares of Beatrice Creamery preferred stock, I also have fifty warants to buy common stock in the company. They are attached to the preferred. I can't see why these warants are any good, in view of the fact that I can buy the common stock much more cheaply on the stock exchange than I would pay if I used the warants. Would you please tell me if these warants are worth anything? If so, how so?—D. M.

Answer: Your warants at present are worth approximately $1.50 to $2 apiece, according to quotations in the over-the-counter market. They may be detached and sold separately from the preferred. You are right in believing that the warants would not do you any good right now if you wanted to buy common stock of Beatrice Creamery.

Each warant entitles its owner to buy one share of Beatrice common at $27.50 a share any time before July 1, 1941, when the warants expire. Because the common stock is considerably cheaper than this now, there is no present use for the warants. But they have a speculative appeal, and this is the factor which gives them a market value now. If Beatrice common should rise to a price higher than $27.50 before July 1, 1941, holders of the warants would be able to use them to buy common at a price below the market.

WARANTS VS. RIGHTS.

Investors' Guide: Is there any difference between warants and rights? As I understand it, they both entitle holders to buy stocks at certain prices.—B. T. E.

Answer: Warants and rights are similar in some respects, but are actually two distinct kinds of securities buying privileges given to securities holders. Sometimes the terms are loosely used interchangeably.

Warants are attached to certain stocks or bonds at the time the securities are issued. The warant usually entitles the holder to buy stock in the company at a price that is higher than the price at the time the warant is given. This means that the stock will have to rise in price before the warant will become valuable for use in buying stock.

Rights, on the other hand, are issued to those who already have stock in the company. These are usually an immediate advantage to the shareholder, because rights give old stockholders the privilege of buying new stock more cheaply than they could buy it at the time in the open market. Rights usually expire in a few weeks or months. Warants may run for years or indefinitly.

Trade Shows Draw Buyers, Aid Business

With nearly 15,000 persons arriving here for various conventions, the Chicago Association of Commerce reported yesterday that wholesalers had benefited from last week's influx of buyers and delegates. A further stimulus to trade is expected from visitors attending numerous trade meetings scheduled for the next few weeks, the association said.

Benjamin Fairless.

The largest group of delegates was that which registered yesterday at the Stevens hotel for the opening of the thirty-second annual convention of the National Canners' association. Exhibits showing the latest inventions and methods of canning will be opened in the hotel's Grand ballroom today.

Fairless to Be Speaker.

During the week's sessions, various widely known speakers will address the delegates. These include Benjamin Fairless, president of the United States Steel corporation, and United States Senator Claude H. Pepper of Florida. The convention will last through Friday.

Other food groups are holding meetings and conventions in the city. Ira E. Merrill, of Toledo, O., was elected president of the National Food Brokers association, in session at the Palmer House.

Grocer Group Meets.

In the Hotel Sherman, more than 2,500 members of the National Retailer-Owned Grocers association opened their eleventh annual convention yesterday.

Other similar associations holding meetings yesterday included the National Macaroni manufacturers, the Cherry and Glace Fruit association, the American Spice Trade association, and the Northwest Cherry Briners association.

U. S. Rayon Output Lower; Japan Leads in Production

New York, Jan. 22.—(AP)—United States rayon yarn production declined 17,309,000 pounds in 1938 to 257,916,000 pounds, while Japan led world production with 550,000,000 pounds, Rayon Organon said today. World production of rayon yarn and fiber again in 1938 broke all records, increasing 77,000,000 pounds to 1,900,000,000 pounds. United States rayon yarn consumption during 1938 also reached a new high at 327,387,000 pounds, an increase of 4,764,000 pounds over the previous year.

STOCKS OF UTILITIES ONLY STRONG GROUP IN WEEK'S TRADING

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 22.—Stock market prices moved in a narrow range last week and finished below the levels of the preceding week, after a series of irregular sessions.

Dealings were extremely dull, as traders showed an inclination to wait until the market gives a definite indication of its future trend before taking on any large commitments. Volume for the week totaled only 4,402,160 shares, the smallest for any six days since the week that ended Aug. 20. Brokers can make no profit at that level.

In the first five days the market did little, but the trend was higher. Saturday, however, brought a sharp reaction, with the Dow-Jones industrial average showing its widest decline since Nov. 16. This was more than sufficient to wipe out all the gain of the preceding days.

In the face of the general decline, the power and light division finished with a slight gain in the averages. Columbia Gas and Electric, North American, and Consolidated Edison were active and fractionally higher, presumably on hopes that the government is going to put away the "big stick."

Profit, Sales of Hardware Firm Decline

Hibbard, Spencer, Bartlett & Co. earned $383,878, or $1.94 a share, in 1938, C. J. Whipple, president, said yesterday in his annual report to stockholders. The net profit was a sharp decline from the $727,228, or $3.69 a share earned in the year ended Dec. 31, 1937. The company is a large Chicago hardware wholesaler.

C. J. Whipple.

Whipple said sales in 1938 were about 18 per cent less than in 1937. He said the company's inventories, valued at $2,534,409 at the end of 1938, were "considerably less than a year ago." [The 1937 report showed inventories of $3,327,721.]

Optimistic About Early 1939.

"The outlook for the early months of 1939," Whipple said, "seems better than a year ago."

The American Furniture Mart Building Company, Inc., reported that net income for the year ended Nov. 30, 1938, was $162,183. This compared with $77,319 in the preceding year.

The United corporation, formed in 1922 as a public utility holding company, reported for 1938 a net income of $8,501,991, against $10,692,598 in 1937. Gross receipts were $9,372,986, against $11,293,241. The report for 1938 gives retroactive effect to changes in the company's status and is subject to revision.

Conforms to SEC System.

The statement conforms with the uniform system of accounts prescribed for public utility holding companies by the Securities and Exchange commission, with which the United corporation has registered.

Other changes in the form of the statement resulted from approval by the stockholders on Aug. 11 of a restatement of the company's security holdings as of June 30 and the making of charges to earned surplus, reserve for depreciation of securities and capital surplus. Large losses in investments were given effect as a result of these changes in bookkeeping.

The Whitaker Paper company, Cincinnati, O., reported 1938 net earnings were $153,726, equal to $3.22 a share, compared with $342,203 or $9.48 a share in 1937.

RECOVERY RATE DIMINISHES IN STEEL INDUSTRY

The recovery trend in the steel industry faded last week. Ingot production fell ½ point to 51.5 per cent of capacity, the magazine Steel reported yesterday.

"Buyers continue hesitant to order beyond early needs, although, with only a few exceptions, stocks are low and requirements are steady or heavier," the journal's weekly review stated.

The droop in demand for steel and in operations are attributed in part to the absence of the seasonal boost from the automobile industry.

This seasonal trend was shifted in 1936, the magazine said, when the sales promotion of the new models was started in November instead of January. The heavy tonnage requirements were thus removed from the first to the fourth quarter of the year.

Railroads continued to support the market with orders and inquiries.

Purchase of 25,000 to 30,000 tons of steel scrap by Republic Steel last week strengthened the scrap market.

Revere Copper & Brass Completes New York Mill

Completion of a $3,250,000 brass and copper mill at Rome, N. Y., by Revere Copper and Brass, Inc., was announced yesterday. C. D. Dallas, president of the company, said the mill is equipped to produce 2,000,000 pounds of brass strip a month. The company has spent several million dollars in the last five years on other improvements at plants in Chicago, Detroit, Baltimore, and New Bedford, Mass.

CHARGES SILVER POLICY WASTES WEALTH OF U. S.

Senator Hits Bounty to Foreigners.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 22.—[Special.]—Arguments in favor of his bill to repeal the silver purchase act of 1934 were presented by Senator Townsend [Rep., Del.] today in answers which he gave to questions asked him by "correspondents and others."

One point made by the senator was that while purchases of foreign silver by the government have promoted American exports, the net result has been harmful to the country.

Admitting that cessation of silver imports would tend to reduce exports, the senator asserted:

"Reduction of such exports of goods as are now dependent on our silver purchases is, indeed, the chief object of my bill, because such exportation of goods is the exportation of American wealth.

"Criminal Waste," He Charges.

"We do not export goods just for fun, or to make jobs, any more than people take jobs for the sport of working. Nationally as well as individually we should work, we should manufacture, and we should export goods with the object of getting in return something valuable, consumable and enjoyable.

"For Americans as a nation to work hard and produce cotton, wheat, motor cars, and other manufactures, or even just services, and to send or render those commodities, manufactures, and services to foreigners in exchange for a perfectly useless metal to be buried in the ground at West Point is a criminal waste and should be stopped by congress immediately.

"Benefits Taken From People."

"The process of silver buying now going on involves a huge national loss, week after week, which is no less real because we as individuals may not have been conscious of it or because it doesn't seem to come out of our personal pocketbooks.

"The commerce department's balance of payment statistics will be ample proof of this loss, and already far more than a thousand million dollars has been the benefit taken from the American people by those who have sold silver to the treasury.

"Apart from this, those who have sold silver to others on a market and at a price artificially held up by the American silver policy have profited enormously."

Day By Day Story of the Experimental Farms

By Frank Ridgway

Boost Egg Output

January 22, 1939.

PRODUCTION records kept throughout 1938 show that a small flock of hens laid 15,775, or 1,314 dozen eggs during the twelve month period ending Dec. 31 at the Du Page county farm. This is one of the flocks kept primarily to produce eggs and chickens for use on the farm.

The monthly average per hen during the year was 10.8 eggs, compared with the average of 11.6 eggs per hen produced by good flocks throughout the country. The latter figures are from official records compiled by the government, covering 20,000 flocks. These flocks are larger and receive better care than those on the average farm.

Farm Flock Small.

The Du Page county farm flock is now quite small, having been gradually reduced from 163 layers the first of last year to only forty-two at the end of the year. The average flock included in the official figures contained seventy-eight layers on the first of the year.

During the first half of the year both Rhode Island Red and white Plymouth Rock hens were in the flock. The forty-two hens on the farm in December were all of the White Rock breed. Since the first of the year thirty-six White Rock pullets have been added to the laying flock, making a total of seventy-eight. This approximates the number of layers, hens, and pullets now found in the average farm flock.

The flock gets about the same care as those on the average middle west farm, where birds are kept for general purposes, producing chickens for frying, broiling, and stewing, and layers.

Get Laying Mash.

The flock is provided with comfortable quarters and given good feed and plenty of water. In the summer the birds range in the orchard. At this time of the year the hens and pullets are given a commercial laying mash. Each evening they are fed a scratch feed mixture made up of equal parts of cracked corn and wheat with a small amount of cracked sunflower seed.

The pullets, hatched in May and June, have just started laying.

Favorable weather this winter has made it possible for the poultry keeper to increase the average number of eggs produced per layer. The records at the farm show that 175 hens in December, 1937, produced an average of only 1.6 eggs, compared with 6.2 eggs laid by forty-two hens in December, 1938.

Farmers generally are able to feed their birds more this winter because of an abundant feed supply. Unseasonably high temperatures during the early winter months have encouraged egg production. New record high levels of egg production per layer and per farm have been showing up in recent official reports.

Table of Production.

The following table shows by months the story of egg production on the Du Page county farm:

Month.	No. hens in farm flock.	No. eggs produced.	Mo. ave. eggs per hen in farm flock.	Mo. ave. eggs per hen in U. S. flocks.

15 CENT WAGE REJECTED FOR PECAN LABOR

Washington, D. C., Jan. 22.—(AP)—The Wage-Hour administration today denounced working conditions in the Texas pecan shelling industry. This action came with the rejection of a request from the Southern Pecan Shelling company, San Antonio, Tex., for permission to pay "learners" less than 25 cents an hour.

Reporting his findings, Merle D. Vincent, chief of the exemption section, said some of the 7,000 to 10,000 pecan shellers in the San Antonio area had received as little as $2.50 to $3.50 a week in the past. He said they had been kept from starvation by public and private charity.

Vincent cited the Southern Pecan Shelling company, a partnership headed by Julius Seligman, as having made large profits. In a recent two year period, he said, its net realization exceeded $500,000.

"During these years the workers who shelled the pecans that the Seligman company handled," he said, "continued to be a public charge."

The company sought permission to pay the "learners" 15 cents an hour for a ninety day period.
